5-Point Program May Pass Congress

Likely Before Summer

By JOE HALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's minimum five-point 1961 legislative program appears likely to be passed before Congress quits next summer.

It is the new and different proposals he may send to Capitol Hill that Democrats and Republicans alike are awaiting with interest. Even before Friday's inauguration, committees started doing some of the spade work on the five items—depressed areas, minimum wage, housing, aid to education, and a social security health care system.

All are somewhat old hat on Capitol Hill. Both Senate and House have struggled with them in recent years, but in the face of heavy Eisenhower administration opposition to the form in which most Democrats wanted the measures passed.

Democratic leaders say the path for the bills will be smoothed immeasurably by the assurance they will be signed, and by active support for them from the executive departments concerned.

A Senate Banking subcommittee opened public hearings Wednesday on depressed areas legislation designed to furnish jobs in communities which long have suffered from high unemployment. This is likely to be the first major bill to reach Kennedy's desk.

On the other four priority measures, hearings probably will not begin until the new administration is ready to spell out details of what it wants.

For instance, Kennedy as a senator at one time sponsored minimum wage legislation to extend coverage of the act to more than 10 million additional workers.

Congress is not expected to approve more than about four million. The question is whether Kennedy will ask for something he knows will be cut down, or start with a rock bottom figure and fight any changes.

Democratic advocates of such measures as minimum wage and aid to education say detailed proposals should be forthcoming soon after the new White House officials and department heads start functioning.

However, there is much more uncertainty about what Kennedy will recommend in fields not covered by the five points.

Among other things, the legislators are awaiting decisions on:

—Whether Kennedy will ask for an immediate boost in defense spending and, if so, in what items and how much.

—What kind of farm legislation he will support. There has been some indication the President has backed away from the program of stiff controls and production cuts he urged in the campaign.

—Whether he will recommend the Pentagon reorganization urged by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., and generally supported only by the Air Force.

—Whether he will follow the desires of Democratic governors and numerous Democrats in Congress by proposing increased allotments for the 41,000-mile national super-highway network so that it can be completed close to the original 1972 deadline.

—Whether he will recommend quick action on a new Cabinet department of urban affairs.

Administration Offers Aid For Settling Strike

NEW YORK (AP)—President Kennedy's one-day-old administration offered Saturday to lend a hand toward settling a 12-day rail and ferry walkout that has hit 100,000 commuters.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said Labor Secretary Arthur Goldberg telephoned him from Washington and "offered his cooperation" in working toward a settlement.

The Republican governor told newsmen he would keep in touch with Goldberg but had not asked the Cabinet member to come to New York.

Rockefeller made the announcement as negotiators buckled down to weekend bargaining under his prodding to keep the talks going on a round-the-clock basis.

The 100,000 commuters, who have been using catch-as-catch-can methods of getting to work, kept their fingers crossed, and hoped service would be restored by Monday, the next work day.

The tieup, described by the governor as verging on catastrophe, began as a strike of 660 members of three maritime unions in a dispute with 11 railroads operating Hudson River tugs and barges. The chief issue is the size of tugboat crews.

The strikers at first limited their picketing to the waterfront but then moved inland and picketed Grand Central Terminal, Pennsylvania Station and other passenger and freight railroad points.

All New York Central and New Haven Railroad service in and out of Grand Central Terminal ceased when train crews refused to cross the picket lines. The Central tieup has extended to Cleveland.

Frigid Arctic Air Sends Mercury To Below Zero

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bitter cold plagued most of the eastern half of the nation Saturday.

Frigid arctic air plunged temperatures to subzero depths from the Plains to the eastern seaboard. The freezing weather extending into northern Florida.

The severe cold moved into New England on the heels of the worst snowstorm to hit the area in more than 60 years. The blizzard Friday dumped snow up to a depth of 29 inches in some places, paralyzing traffic and closing schools and businesses.

At least 69 deaths were attributed to the weather, most in the East and Northeast. Most of he fatalities resulted from heart attacks while shoveling snow. Traffic accidents on ice-covered roads also accounted for a substantial number of deaths.

Subzero temperatures in New England moderated into the teens Saturday afternoon but were expected to drop below zero again Saturday night.

New York reported an overnight reading of —30 at Poughkeepsie in the Catskill Mountains, with mostly below zero readings elsewhere in the state. In New Jersey, the temperature dipped to —15 in spots.

Defense Council Meet In Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Premier Prince Boun Oum and Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, main military prop of his pro-Western regime, flew to Luang Prabang Saturday for a high defense council meeting with King Savang Vathana.

Amid reports of a stepped-up offensive by the pro-Communist rebels, Information Minister Bouavan Norasing told newsmen the council meeting is "routine." He declined to say whether the military situation had grown worse.

The United States meanwhile is stopping shipment of weapons any more advanced than the single-engine armed training planes that have arrived here. The six T6 Harvard trainers, one of which has been shot down, make up the Laotian air force.

But R. J. Boyle, a former brigadier general who heads the U. S. Program Evaluation Office, said Washington does not want to introduce more sophisticated weapons "unless Russia ups the ante." The Soviet Union has been parachuting supplies to the rebels.

There are no plans to fly in more planes for the Laotian air force, he said, except that, "We are prepared to replace the one they have lost."

The PEO is composed of former U. S. military men who say they give only technical training in the use of American weapons to the Laotians. They are not supposed to give any tactical advice in the field although they go out with government units fighting the rebels.

Rescue 18 From School Bus In Drifted Snow

SOURIS, Prince Edward Island (AP)—Snowplow crews Saturday rescued 18 high school students and a driver marooned overnight in a school bus on a North Shore road covered by snow drifts reaching the level of the telephone wires. All were reported safe and well.

The bus was found stalled in a drift about 12 miles west of this fishing town on the Gulf of St. Lawrence after the worst blizzard of the winter.

Though temperatures were near zero, the bus was new and tight and the driver, Stirling Burke of Fortune, was able to run the heater periodically. And the boys and girls were dressed for rough weather.

Twenty - four children were aboard when Burke headed out of Souris at 2 p.m. Friday in the rising storm to deliver them to their homes along his 54-mile route.

A half-dozen had been dropped off when further progress was blocked at a point several miles from the nearest farm house and about eight miles from a telephone.

A snowplow was sent out Friday night along the route.

When it failed to return by 2 a. m., another plow was dispatched on the same route, battling snow and 90-mile-an-hour winds that stalled sea and air transportation and delayed trains. The total fall was 18 inches.

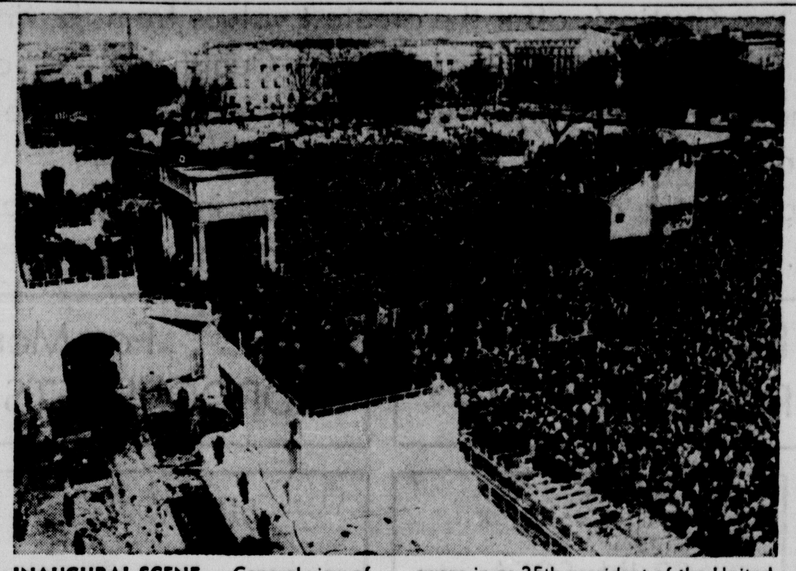

The happy ending came shortly before noon.

The bus was dug out and, with a plow breaking trail, crawled along and delivered the rest of the children—right hungry after more than 20 hours aboard—to their homes.

The storm took at least one life. A. T. Ceretti, 81, died on his way to a hospital after a snowplow crew found him in a marooned car near Bedeque.

Khrushchev Holds 2 - Hour Meeting With Ambassador

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev called U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn E. Thompson to a two-hour conference in the Kremlin Saturday and presumably outlined to him a bid for a meeting with President Kennedy.

Khrushchev has urged a summit conference in the spring.

An American Embassy spokesman, in telling correspondents that there had been a two-hour meeting, said the ambassador and the premier, sitting face to face across a table topped with green felt, discussed Russian-American problems.

Since Thompson speaks relatively good Russian, little time was lost through translation.

The extent of the subject matter covered was indicated by the fact that, while the conference ended at 1:30 p. m., Thompson was still busy more than six hours later dictating and editing the report to be cabled in code to the State Department and to the President who has been in office little more than a full day.

There are a number of outstanding problems which may have been touched upon at the meeting.

There is the perennial crisis over Germany. Khrushchev has indicated he intends to have a settlement of that before the West German elections in September. Lacking a settlement, he has said he will sign a separate peace treaty with Communist East Germany. That would raise the ever troublesome question of Western access to West Berlin.

There is the problem of disarmament and cessation of nuclear testing. Negotiations on both subjects are suspended at present.

There are the questions of Cuba, the Congo and Laos, which have burned to fire heat in recent months, with the Soviet Union and the United States ranged on opposite sides in all cases.

When Khrushchev broke with President Eisenhower at the May 16 summit in Paris he indicated he hoped to resume talks with the next president of the United States.

On several occasions since, Khrushchev has said an early meeting of government chiefs is needed.

The presumption here is that he has laid out a hard bid for a meeting in the spring—and perhaps earlier—that would permit him and young Kennedy to take up the talks which were blasted apart in Paris.

KENNEDY PLACED HAND ON BIBLE

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said Saturday that President Kennedy did place his hand on a Bible while taking the oath of office, despite what some television viewers thought.

Many persons who watched Friday's ceremony on TV said they could not see Kennedy's hand on the Bible. In response to queries Salinger said it was.

Some newsmen who watched the oath-taking at close range said Kennedy placed his hand on the Bible, at least at the start of repeating the oath.

Agriculture Has Big Changes In Eight Years

By OVID A. MARTIN
Associated Press Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The agriculture which came under the supervision of Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman this week is considerably different from that inherited by his predecessor, Ezra Taft Benson, eight years ago.

Perhaps the biggest difference is the size of its productive capacity. Farming has taken giant strides in recent years, increasing the volume of its output as well as its efficiency.

This expansion is productive capacity—made despite government efforts to apply the brake—has complicated the job of the secretary of agriculture and his aides—which is to try to bring about a stability of prices, income and production.

Farm output in 1960 set a record 20 per cent more than the output when the Eisenhower administration took over in 1953. Much of this increase was in crops, particularly grains. Ample evidence of this exists in vast storehouses of wheat, corn, sorghum grain and the like, stored under government price supports.

Increased agricultural productivity has outstripped demand. This is reflected by the fact that when the Eisenhower administration took office, the government had $2,452,000,000 invested in farm surpluses compared with an investment of around $9,250,000,000 inherited by the Kennedy regime.

The amount of money now tied up in wheat alone far exceeds the total surplus investment at the beginning of 1953. The number of dollars tied up in corn also is in excess of total surplus investments eight years ago.

Significant changes have occurred in agriculture's pocketbook. Despite the 20 per cent increase in the outpouring of commodities, farmers' income has gone down. In 1952, returns of operators totaled $14,416,000,000. In 1960, returns were around $11.6 billion—a decline of almost 20 per cent.

In 1952 farm prices averaged 100 per cent of parity. They averaged 80 per cent in 1960, a decline of 20 per cent.

Agriculture has sharply changed its character in other ways too. The farm population has declined. In 1952 there were 24,283,000 persons on farms. By 1959, this number had declined to 21,172,000.

The number of farms has gone down, too—from about 5,250,000 in 1952 to about 4,500,000 at present. The average size of farms has increased.

Farm employment has declined during the period. Workers on farms in 1952—including operators and family workers as well as hired hands—averaged 9,149,000.

MARILYN MONROE FILES FOR DIVORCE

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—Marilyn Monroe filed suit for a Mexican divorce Friday night against her third husband, Arthur Miller.

The beauteous Miss Monroe charged in her complaint incompatability of character.

Miss Monroe arrived in this border city at about 5 p.m. Friday in a flight from New York. She was accompanied by her attorney, Allan Ferge of New York, and an unidentified woman companion.

The plane was delayed and the trio arrived at the Juarez 1st Civil Court at 8 p.m., three hours after closing time.

Judge Miguel Gomez Guerra opened the court especially for the suit to be filed and Miss Monroe appeared with her Mexican attorney, Arture Sosa. Miller was represented by his Mexican attorney, Areliano Gonzalez Vargas.

Under Mexican divorce laws a decree could be issued either Saturday or Sunday.

After the suit was filed Miss Monroe and her two New York companions drove around Juarez and then went to dinner at Vargas' house.

Gettysburg Has Welcome Waiting For Eisenhowers

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Gettysburg rolled out the welcome mat Saturday for a couple named Eisenhower who have set up housekeeping in a big farm house down the road a piece.

A big "welcome home" party was arranged for neighbors Dwight and Mamie Eisenhower, to cap a day in which the 70-year-old former president relaxed and reminisced.

The burdens of the presidency cast aside after eight years, Eisenhower appeared to have only one worry—the bitter cold weather.

"He seems anxious to be in a warmer climate," said Oren H. Wilson, president of the board of trustees of the Gettysburg Presbyterian church.

Wilson called at the Eisenhower home by invitation to discuss church affairs.

The matter of transferring the Eisenhowers memberships from the National Presbyterian church in Washington to the Gettysburg church took little time, but Ike was in a reminiscent and mellow mood. Wilson stayed on while the ex-president for a day talked of many things.

Then Eisenhower, attired much like any country squire, walked about 100 yards with Wilson as he left.

Eisenhower seemed surprised that nearly a dozen reporters and photographers were on hand. "How many of you are still around?" he asked.

Despite the cold, Eisenhower appeared without an overcoat.

He wore a brown tweed suit, mustard-colored shirt, brown tie and hat, and a Texas-style hat.

A single Secret Service agent, in contrast to the many who used to swarm about when Eisenhower was president, was on hand. The agent, Dick Flohr, who served as Eisenhower's driver during his eight years in the White House, explained that he was on vacation.

Residents of Gettysburg and Adams county were ready with best wishes and gifts.

STREAM OF VISITORS HONOR DR. DOOLEY

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A stream of visitors passed by the bier of Dr. Thomas A. Dooley Saturday to pay last respects to the famed jungle doctor.

The 34-year-old medical missionary to Southeast Asia, a cofounder of the worldwide medical organization known as MEDICO, died of cancer Wednesday in New York City. He was first stricken in 1959 at his pioneering hospital in Laos.

Funeral services will be held at 9:30 a.m. Monday at St. Louis Roman Catholic cathedral.

Among hundreds paying last respects were the Rev. Thomas J. O'Donnell, S. J., of Dublin, and Dr. Emmanuel Voulgaropoulas of New York. Father O'Donnell, assigned to the Vatican radio station in Rome, stopped here on a return trip from Australia to Rome to pay his respects. Dr. Voulgaropoulas helped Dr. Dooley found the first MEDICO hospital in Cambodia.

Cardinal Joseph E. Ritter of St. Louis, in Rome for his elevation to the College of Cardinals earlier this week, cabled he had offered mass for Dr. Dooley's soul "asking God to be generous in granting a reward for his self-sacrifice."

Messages came from Mayor Robert Wagner of New York, Prince Souphan Phaheuangsi of the Laotian Embassy in Washington, and the government of the Federation of Malaya.

'NATURAL PURITY AND OPTIMISM'

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—Communist Hungary's Roman Catholic newspaper Uj Ember says movie actress Brigitte Bardot is no sex kitten but a beautiful girl of "natural purity and optimism." The French film star appeared on Hungarian screens for the first time recently in the movie "Babette Goes to War."

Kennedy Has Full Card First Day

U.S. Ready, Anxious To Join World Peace Cause

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — In his first move in international affairs, President Kennedy assured Soviet Premier Khrushchev Saturday that the United States is ready and anxious to join with the Soviet Union and other nations in working toward the "imperative goal" of world peace.

Kennedy's message, responding to a Khrushchev telegram of congratulations on his inauguration, was announced by the White House shortly after members of the new President's Cabinet were sworn in.

Earlier in the day, in an evident further bid to open up a new era in Soviet relations with the United States, Khrushchev conferred for two hours with U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson in Moscow.

The exchange of messages in the first hours of Kennedy's administration opens an active period in Moscow-Washington diplomacy looking toward East-West negotiations and probably an eventual summit conference.

Kennedy plans to concentrate his efforts in the next few months on expanding U.S. military power and developing new foreign policy proposals in preparation for these negotiations.

Meanwhile he is expected to open consultations with U.S. allies. Some of the best-informed diplomats here believe he may find it necessary by late spring to make a flying trip to Europe for brief talks with Western leaders and perhaps an exploratory meeting with Khrushchev.

Kennedy welcomed Khrushchev's message of congratulation. He told the Soviet leader, "We are ready and anxious to cooperate with all who are prepared to join in genuine dedication to the assurance of a peaceful and more fruitful life for all mankind."

Kennedy is expected to concentrate for several months on increasing U.S. military power and shaping new proposals before consulting leaders of the Western Alliance.

Action along those lines looks like the best bet for moves by Kennedy, pending development of new or revised proposals on such major issues as the future of Berlin and the international reduction and control of armaments.

Kennedy is understood to be fully aware that although he needs a breathing spell of several months to work on the big issues in East-West relations he cannot stand still for long.

At least in the field of diplomatic maneuver he must demonstrate by action a desire to get his new "quest for peace" under way; otherwise he will find the initiative once more in Khrushchev's hands.

The Soviet premier, in fact, has already made his first move. He held a long discussion Saturday with U. S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson, evidently to relay to Kennedy without delay his views on world affairs.

A bid for renewal of active U. S.-Soviet negotiations had been expected here immediately after Kennedy's inauguration. Following Kennedy's election in November Khrushchev called for renewed exchanges once President Eisenhower had left office.

With this in mind, Kennedy challenged Khrushchev in his inaugural address Friday to join in a "quest for peace." He said the United States and its allies would never fear to negotiate, but neither would they negotiate from fear.

RECEPTION HONORS ST. LOUIS CARDINAL

ROME (AP)—About 400 guests attended a reception at Rome's pontifical North American College Saturday for Joseph Cardinal Ritter, archbishop of St. Louis, who was elevated to the cardinalate this week.

Among the guests were two other princes of the church, Italian Amleto Cardinal Cicognani and American Aloisius Cardinal Muench. There were also many bishops and other prelates.

Archbishop Martin J. O'Connor of Scranton, Pa., rector of the North American College, was the host.

Cabinet Sworn In

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy administration opened with a bang Saturday.

In his first full day in the White House, 43 - year - old President Kenedy:

1. Messaged Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev that the United States stands "ready and anxious to cooperate with all who are prepared to join in genuine dedication to the assurance of a peaceful and more fruitful life for all mankind."

2. Ordered more and better food given to the needy in the nation's economically depressed areas.

3. Witnessed the mass swearing-in of his Cabinet about three hours after the Senate had confirmed the nominations with hardly a dissent.

Kennedy's message to Khrushchev was in reply to congratulations sent by the Russian premier on the new President's inauguration Friday. Like Khrushchev's cable, Kennedy's reply was in cordial terms.

The Kennedy message was sent off to the U.S. Embassy in Moscow, for delivery to the Kremlin, after the President had consulted with his newly installed secretary of state, Dean Rusk.

Chief Justice Earl Warren administered the oath to Kennedy's 10 Cabinet members in a body.

Adlai Stevenson, who tried for the presidency twice himself, was sworn as U. S. ambassador to the United Nations. He may sit with the Cabinet when Kennedy invites him to do so.

Kennedy, whose order broadening the food distribution program started redeeming a campaign promise, looked on as the black-robed Warren gave the oath to the Cabinet officers standing in a semicircle in the gold-and-cream East Room of the White House.

One of those inducted was Robert F. Kennedy, the President's brother and now his attorney general. Robert Kennedy's nomination was the only one to draw a "no" vote in the Senate. His only

Queen Elizabeth Lays Wreath At Gandhi's Shrine

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II laid a wreath of white roses Saturday at the shrine of Mohandas K. Gandhi, whom her ancestors jailed 16 times.

About 100,000 Indians watched in orderly silence.

By leading the long agitation which resulted in India's independence, Gandhi probably contributed more than any other individual to the breakup of Britain's once vast empire. He spent a dozen years in British prisons.

Yet the first official act of the first British sovereign to visit India since 1911 was to lay 500 roses at the site where Gandhi's body was cremated in 1948.

Later the queen planted a sapling in a 21-acre park dedicated to Gandhi's memory, placing it between a flowering magnolia sent by President Eisenhower and a mango planted by India's President Rajendra Prasad.

From Gopala Krishnan Gandhi, 15, grandson of Gandhi, she accepted five books and a spinning wheel. Each gift had historical significance. Three of the books were by Gandhi, including an exposition of passive resistance techniques he used against the British. The other two were studies of Gandhi by other authors.

The spinning wheel was a model of one devised by Gandhi in one of his spells of imprisonment. Gandhi urged Indians to spin their own cloth rather than buy British textiles. The spinning wheel was one of his symbols of resistance.

Bailey In Top Demo Job With Full Kennedy Backing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy started John M. Bailey as Democratic national chairman Saturday with a promise of full cooperation by the White House in political matters.

In his first public speech since his inaugural Friday, Kennedy praised Bailey, a Hartford, Conn., attorney, as one who knows the problems of the party at the state and national level.

The President spoke shortly after the Democratic National Committee unanimously had elected Bailey—Kennedy's choice—to succeed Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash. Jackson, who had served as chairman since July 16, resigned to devote all his time to his Senate duties.

Bailey, who for the last 16 years has been Connecticut state chairman, has been working with Jackson here for several weeks.

Like all Democratic chairmen in the last 32 years except Jackson, Bailey is a Roman Catholic.

He said he will serve without pay and will devote full time to the job. He is independently wealthy.

Kennedy was relaxed, smiling and in a joking mood as he appeared before the party group.

He looked fit and fresh despite the long hours he has spent in the last few days attending various inauguration ceremonies and parties.

The new chief executive said he is a great believer in strong, vigorous political organizations. He said the Republican party had come out of its election defeat a strong organization. This is true of the victorious Democrats, too, he said.

"Both parties serve the interests of the people," Kennedy said. "I shall cooperate in every way possible with you. We will look forward toward working together in the future.

"We may not know here in Washington as well as you do in the states what your problems are. But we will be trying."

Kennedy cracked that in resigning Jackson "automatically loses his share of the $4-million debt."

Previously, party treasurer Matthew McCloskey had told the committee that $1.3 million was raised by a preinaugural gala, but that the party needs $680,000 for its operations this year and has debts of about $3.5 million.

McCloskey said the party had spent about $320,000 on expenses for Kennedy aides since the Nov. 8 election.

The Democrats still must raise $3,280,000, the treasurer said.

Time Bombs Cast Spell Of Fear For Algerians

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Two time bomb explosions Saturday cast a new spell of fear on Algeria, reeling after six years of terror and violence.

Eight persons were killed and 27 wounded in Tizi-Quzou, east of Algiers, by simultaneous bomb blasts accompanying the entry into town of the French public works and transport minister, Robert Buron. Buron is in Algeria on an inspection tour.

Two other bombs, one in a shop and another on the steps of the post office, were discovered later in the day. They exploded before they could be disarmed, and one person was injured.

The explosions followed by 40 hours a rebel ambush on a mountain road south of Algiers, where a French army chaplain, four nurses and two Moslem auxiliary soldiers were slain.

At Blida, southwest of Algiers, a large group of young Moslem men and women invaded an open air market Saturday and wrecked the stands, then moved on to an European housing quarter. A shot, apparently fired from one of the apartments, wounded a 14-year-old Moslem girl. Cars were stoned and several of their drivers were hurt. Soldiers moved in and restored a tense calm.

Sweetheart Luncheon

Very special plans are being made these days! A sweetheart luncheon honoring all women who were leaders or assistant leaders of a Girl Scout troop in 1960 will be given on Thursday, Feb. 2, at 12:30 p.m. at Hamilton's cafe. If you were a leader or an assistant in 1960 you are hereby officially invited to attend. Please make reservations by calling the Girl Scout Office by January 26. Your name may have been inadvertently omitted from the list of leaders because of the tremendous turn-over. This is a special tribute and a way of recognizing Girl Scout leaders, without whom the Girl Scout program would not exist. Plan now to attend this luncheon.

The Girl Scout calendar is pretty full these days. Committees meeting this week were: Membership-nominating at 7 p.m. Monday; finance committee at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday; training committee at 11 a.m. Wednesday.

Wednesday afternoon at the Legion Hall in Winchester the meeting of the Scott county Neighborhood was held with 12 leaders from Winchester and Bluffs present. Important events were announced and suggestions made for troop activities as well as plans for summer camp. A program of international friendship material was presented to launch troops on that phase of Scouting. During the social hour refreshments were served as problems of leaders were discussed.

Congregation Puts Million Dollars Worth of Faith Into Dallas Church

By RALPH MONCRIEF
Written For NEA

DALLAS (NEA)—The preaching and teaching of the Bible have become million dollar items at Dallas' First Baptist church. The 12,000 members have pledged $1,200,290 to their church for 1961.

"Never in the history of Christendom has such a stupendous financial program been undertaken," according to Dr. W. A. Criswell, the minister at First Baptist.

The $1,195,000 budget voted by the members in October was oversubscribed by $5,290 when all pledges were totaled.

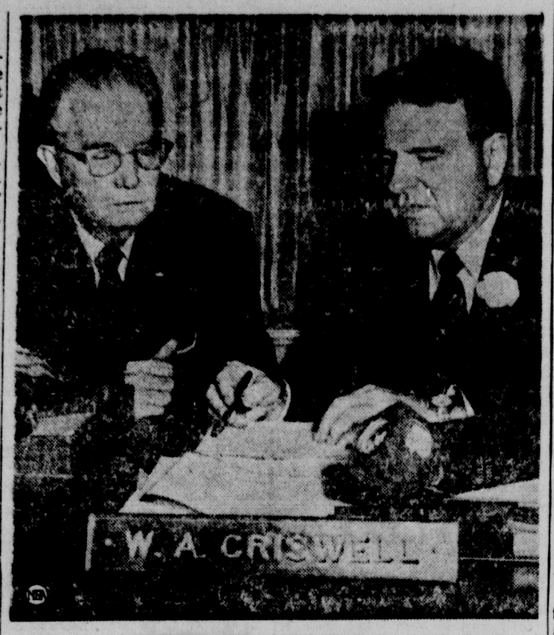

Operating expenses of the church will take $498,352. This figure includes $221,130 in salaries for 50 staff members and 50 maintenance workers, promotional expenses for 86 Sunday School departments, and other expenses that run from $300 for flowers for pulpit and funerals to $13,975 for a music program. Of the balance, $501,648 will be used for denominational, benevolent and missionary causes, and $195,000 will be applied to the debt on church buildings valued at $7 million.

• • •

"The most marvelous thing about this giving program," says Dr. Criswell, "is that it is done by thousands of humble, Christ-loving people. Those who are familiar with the tremendous budget of our church but unfamiliar with the congregation think we are a group of multi-millionaires and seem surprised when they find out it is made possible only through the love and devotions of these thousands of members.

"The genius of this financial appeal lies in a strict following of the teaching of the Bible. Examine First Corinthians 16:2. It says, 'On the first day of the week let everyone of you lay by in store . . .' The secret of our success is found in the admonition 'everyone of you.' That means every member of the family pledges to give, father, mother, son and daughter.

"The son and daughter give because they have been trained in Stewardship and giving is second nature to them. An idea of how a child is not trained in this stewardship is when a man takes his son to an amusement park and gives him fifty cents for the hobby-horses and Ferris wheel, seventy-five cents for a show and twenty-five cents for cotton candy, then on Sunday morning hands him five cents for the church. That boy gets the idea and seldom ever gives to the church when he grows up."

DR. W. A. CRISWELL, right, and C. H. Zachry study details of a $1.2 million budget for their church.

Such a budget entails a mountainous volume of work. Most of it has been entrusted to a lay business executive and church deacon, C. H. Zachry.

"The principal business of the church is Christ's Great Commission of 'go ye into all the world and make disciples. . .'," he says. "Yet there is also a business side to this commission. It was so in Christ's day when His disciples looked after this business side of Christianity. Today, it has been passed on to the lay leadership."

Do You Remember Alf Landon?

Comeback By Most Unsuccessful Presidential Candidate

By WARD CANNEL
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Topeka, Kans.—(NEA)— Nervous? Man, you just don't know about nervous until you watch Alf Landon sweat it out in Topeka.

"It's the waiting," Landon said, lighting another cigarette. "I thought I knew all about waiting. Why, I never lost a night's sleep over an oil well or a presidential nomination.

"But waiting for galley proofs on your first book seems to be an entirely different kind of waiting."

At 74, the Sunflower candidate who lost the presidency to Franklin Roosevelt in the biggest landslide in U.S. history is back in national politics with a book called "For the New President and the American People."

And if you want to find out how old you are—and why he's nervous—ask the younger generation-and-a-half who Alf Landon is. That election was lost 25 years ago.

"There are a number of compensations for staying out of the public eye," he said.

"The most important thing is your family. I'm not so sure you're giving your children any advantage by being a well-known father.

"And besides, you don't have to sleep in hotel rooms and train compartments if you stay home. I haven't been away from home in years—except to drill a few oil wells."

And he wouldn't be on edge now if he hadn't succumbed to an invitation to visit New York last May and speak at a rally for the Sane Nuclear Policy Committee with Mrs. Roosevelt and Gov. G. Mennen Williams and Walter Reuther.

"Before I knew it," he said, "I had promised to write a book. So there was nothing to do but come back to Topeka and start."

According to Landon, the book is a series of notes and memos of his thoughts and suggestions about politics, policy and organization. But according to publisher Rudo Globus, the book is going to knock more than a few eminent Americans and ideas off their equilibrium (and the galleys will be ready any day now.)

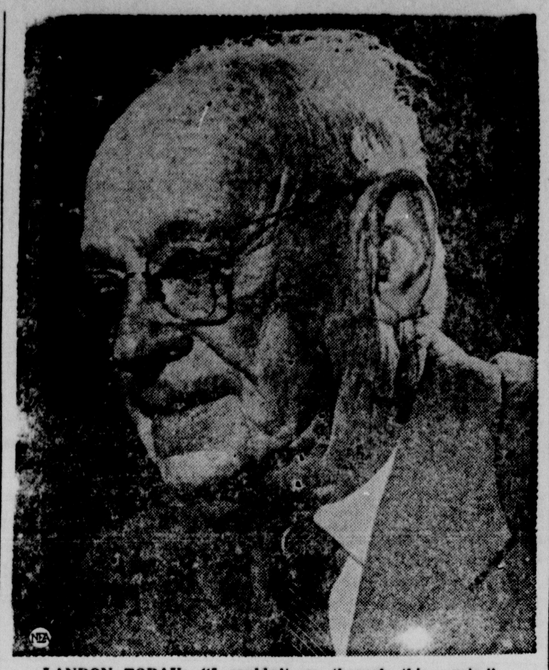

"But," Landon said, lighting another cigarette, "I just don't know why the waiting should be so difficult.

"I've seen my words in print thousands of times. I've been interviewed so often that—well, I'd know enough not to engage in a television debate with an opposing candidate.

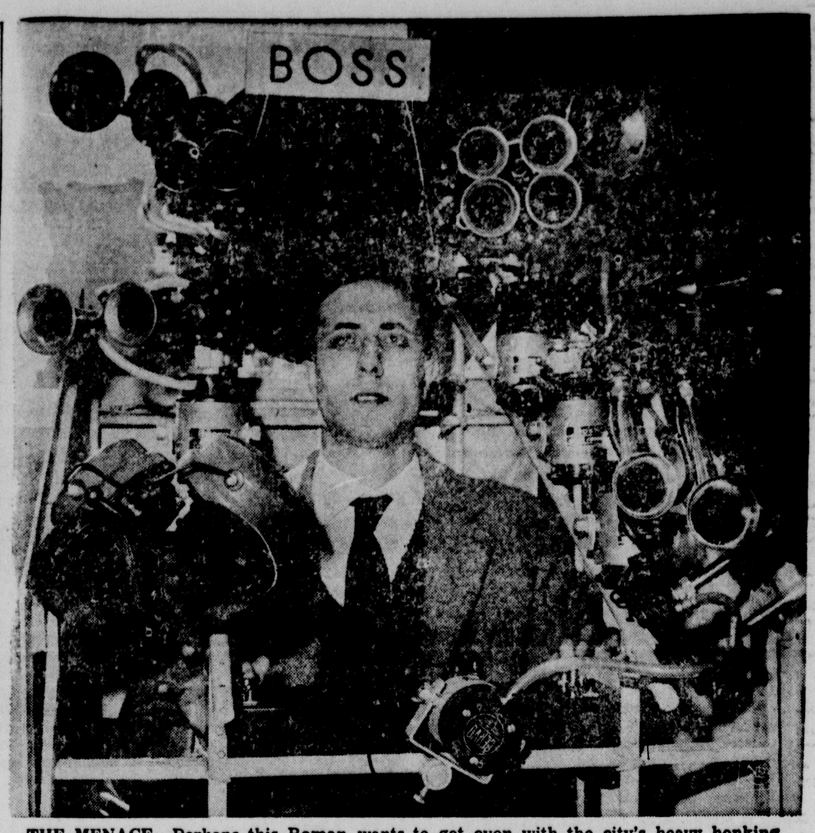

"And as for making speeches, why I own several radio stations in Kansas and they keep complaining that they have to read what I say in the newspapers.

"But I've never been this excited about anything like this. I wrote to Arthur Schlesinger, Jr. because he's had a lot of experience writing books. He wrote back and said it was natural to feel this way and not to worry.

"But I don't think I'll write another book. I couldn't go through this again."

LANDON TODAY: "I couldn't go through this again."

Chicago Livestock Market Report

CHICAGO (AP) — Despite a smaller supply, the butcher hog market was mostly 25 cents a hundredweight lower for the week. Buyers ascribed the weakness generally to lower prices for dressed pork and a slackened shipper demand which was related to strike-hampered rail operations into New York.

The market topped at $18.25 on three days and at $18 on the other two. The supply, down 3,000 head from the previous week, consisted mainly of 220-260 weights.

Firmer prices for steer and heifer beef in the Chicago wholesale market along with a reduced run of animals through the pens had a steadying effect on slaughter steers. They were steady to 50 cents a hundredweight higher with the advance mostly on high choices and prime kinds.

Slaughter lamb prices eased mostly 25 cents for the week, influenced mainly by a weak dressed lamb trade.

CHICAGO (AP)—(USDA)— Following is a summary of the hog, cattle and sheep markets for the week:

Hogs—compared Friday last week—downturns of mostly 25 cents were recorded on barrows and gilts for the week. Sows steady to 25 higher. Mixed grades No. 1 and 2 and mixed No. 1, 2 and 3 190-230 lb barrows and gilts closed at 17.50-18.00, 62 head No. 1 and 2 200-215 lbs 18.25. Also, early in the week a few consignments reached 18.25. Mixed No. 2 and 3 and No. 3 190-230 lbs 17.25-17.75 with mixed No. 1, 2 and 3 and mixed No. 2 and 3 220-240 lbs 17.00-17.75. Mixed No. 2 and 3 and No. 3 240-270 lb butchers 16.50-17.25 and mixed No. 2 and 3 and No. 3 270-300 lbs 16.25-16.75. Mixed grades No. 1, 2 and 3 and mixed No. 2 and 3 300-400 lb sows 14.50-15.75. Mixed No. 2 and 3 and No. 3 400-550 lbs 13.50-14.75.

Cattle—slaughter steers and heifers generally steady to 50 higher with advance largely on high good to prime grades. Cows steady to 25 lower, bulls 50-1.00 lower, vealers strong, instances 1.00 higher on choice. About 20 loads prime 1065-1375 lbs 29.25-29.50, bulk choice and prime 900-1400 lbs 25.50-29.00 with most late sales 26.25 up. Some choice and mixed choice and prime 1400-1775 lbs 24.50-28.50 largely 25.00 up late with mixed choice and prime 1750 lbs 25.50 and prime 1475 lbs 28.50. Many loads mixed choice and prime 1100-1400 lbs 28.50-29.00 late with few high choice and mixed choice and prime 975-1125 lb steer yearlings also 28.50-29.00. Many loads choice 1000-1350 lbs 26.75-28.25, at the close. But most good and choice 900-1300 lbs 25.50-27.00 late. Bulk good steers largely 24.50 up late. Mixed good and choice heifers 25.00-26.00 and bulk good 23.00-24.75. Utility and commercial bulls 18.50-21.00 at the close, good and choice vealers 21.00-26.00.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced this week in what some Wall Streeters called a "pre-inaugural" rally but the rise was hesitant and irregular.

A strong upsurge on Wednesday accounted for more than the market's net gain for the week. The average made only narrow movements on the other days.

Prices rose despite a fairly depressing parade of business and economic news. The feeling was, however, that some time after John F. Kennedy was inaugurated president on Friday, his new administration would begin taking antirecession measures which might well hasten the business recovery, now generally forecast for around midyear. It was also expected that the Kennedy administration would beef up defense spending and take action to ease interest rates.

The advance, however, was the fourth weekly one in a row and the higher the market the more vulnerable it became to a decline, according to some Wall Street analysts who saw technical signs pointing to increased risks.

The list advanced despite news that December unemployment was the highest for that month since 1940 and that industrial output for December was down for the fifth straight month. December housing starts were the lowest in two years.

The Dow Jones industrial average this week rose a modest .72 to 634.37.

The Associated Press average of 60 stock rose 2.00 to 229.90.

Volume was 20,734,470 shares compared with 22,227,180 the week before.

The most active issue this week on the American Stock Exchange was Jupiter Oils, up 11-16 at 2 3-8.

The bond markets endured inauguration week jitters to post slight gains this week. The advance was nothing to brag about but the trend was clear in both government and corporate sectors.

The rise of U.S. Treasury bonds, reaching a maximum of 5-8 of a point, was the first of the new year. It interrupted a two-week slide that erased two-thirds of December's strong rally.

The corporate list continued an unspectacular improvement that has produced three minor weekly gains. Not since the end of July, when prices were at their 1960-61 peak, has there been three consecutive weekly plus signs.

Volume of corporate trading on the New York Stock Exchange fell to $33,298,000 par value from $35,273,100 the previous week which was the busiest in more than a year. Friday's snow storm prevented an increase. The daily average dipped to $6,659,600 from $7,054,620.

Frigid Arctic Air Sends Mercury To Below Zero

Across the Midwest, below zero temperatures were common. International Falls, Minn., reported —19 with readings elsewhere in the state ranging from —12 to —18. Early Saturday readings throughout Iowa and Illinois were mostly below zero. Wisconsin had low readings ranging from —1 to —18.

Snow accumulations of 10 to 12 inches were measured in northern Indiana.

Elsewhere in the Midwest there was light snow in spots.

Washington, D. C., was moving toward normal after a blizzard that threatened for a time to delay the presidential inauguration Friday.

Maryland, digging out from Thursday's blizzard that left a 15-inch accumulation of snow, received small additional amounts Saturday. Snow flurries in West Virginia added to 3 to 10 inches already on the ground.

In Florida, vegetable and citrus growers came through Friday night's freeze with little or no damage. But the Weather Bureau predicted the danger to crops would be greater Saturday night with temperatures expected to go below freezing as far south as the Everglades.

In Georgia, snow flurries fell on some sections of Atlanta, where temperatures were expected to range from 6 to 12 above by Sunday.

Victim's Husband Takes Overdose Of Sleeping Pills

JACKSON, Minn. (AP) — The ex-Marine husband of a San Diego woman whose body was found stuffed into a trunk held in a Chicago express shed took an overdose of sleeping pills, delaying extensive questioning Saturday.

Edward Albrecht, 24, who lived in Lakefield, Minn., before joining the Marines, was under police guard in a Jackson hospital.

Sheriff Harry Tordsen said Albrecht told him during a brief questioning period that he had taken 50 sleeping pills Friday night because he was worried about his wife.

Police found the body of his wife, Ann, 24, Friday in a trunk stored in a Chicago express depot. Albrecht said he had had domestic troubles with his wife and had last seen her Dec. 20.

Albrecht was not questioned Saturday about his wife's disappearance and the discovery of her body. The sheriff's office said he was still groggy from the overdose and probably would not be well enough for detailed questioning until Sunday or Monday.

The trunk containing the body had been shipped from a false San Diego address to a non-existent address in Chicago and arrived there Dec. 29. Police pried it open.

San Diego police reported that a large trunk had been seen by Albrecht's neighbors on the back porch of the Albrecht home Dec. 20 when he reported his wife missing. San Diego police also said Albrecht had disposed of household effects before he left Dec. 25.

Albrecht was found unconscious by his mother, Mrs. Arno Robby and his stepfather at 11:30 p.m. Friday at their farm home near Lakefield. His 3-year-old daughter, Marie Ellen, was asleep beside him.

MRS. KENNEDY UP EARLY SATURDAY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's new First Lady, Jacqueline Kennedy, got an early start Saturday at the job of running the country's No. 1 home—the White House.

Mrs. Kennedy was up at 8 a.m. after getting only about seven hours sleep. She attended three inaugural balls with her President-husband Friday night, but went on back to the White House shortly after midnight while he went on to additional inaugural festivities.

Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, said the First Lady met with the White House domestic staff at 9:30 a. m. after having breakfast.

There was no detail announced regarding that session, but it presumably dealt with organization of the staff under Mrs. Kennedy's direction.

TSK, TSK — RED FACES

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Fire Commissioner Frederic S. O'Hara turned in a fire alarm Saturday from in front of the city hall. The fire, in his auto, was quickly put out.

BUSINESS LUNCHEON

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy said Saturday he is having Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Undersecretary-to-be Chester Bowles to lunch at the White House Sunday to discuss organization of the department and personnel.

Kennedy Has Busy Card On First Full Day

opponent was Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., who challenged his qualifications.

Congratulating his Cabinet chiefs, and Stevenson, Kennedy said:

"They are all patriotic men who are devoted to the welfare of the country, and they will meet their responsibilities with high distinction."

Within minutes, Kennedy conferred with Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon and Stevenson.

Kennedy took the three men aside for a whispered conversation while some 300 Cabinet relatives, including about 40 children, and friends milled about shaking hands and chatting.

Getting down to foreign and defense problems immediately, Kennedy arranged a meeting Sunday with Rusk and Undersecretary of State Chester Bowles. Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara were called for what looked like a day-long session Monday.

Other Cabinet officers installed: Postmaster General J. Edward Day, Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges, Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg, Secretary of Welfare Abraham Ribicoff, and Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall.

President Kennedy, seeming to thrive on the frantic pace of the inauguration celebration, rose at 8 a. m. after little more than four hours of sleep.

By 9:15, Kennedy was in conference with his top staff aides and not long afterward the White House issued Kennedy's first executive order.

It directed the new secretary of agriculture, Orville L. Freeman, to broaden the food distribution program with funds already on hand. This food, from government-held stocks acquired under the price support program, goes free of charge to impoverished families in areas plagued by chonric unemployment.

Thus—less than 24 hours after taking office—Kennedy moved to fulfill a pledge he made during the presidential campaign.

In the Senate, Democratic leaders brought up the names of Kennedy's 10 Cabinet nominees and all were confirmed amid high praise from Republicans as well as Democrats.

Also confirmed, without objection, was Adlai E. Stevenson as U. S. ambassador to the United Nations.

The only dissenting vote was registered by Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., against Robert F. Kennedy, 35, the President's brother, to be attorney general.

As he has before, Allott questioned Robert Kennedy's experience and background for the job.

"Capable, ambitious and driving as he may be, he has not had sufficient background in the law to qualify him for this position," Allott said.

Several other Republicans said they had misgivings about Robert Kennedy, but did not oppose confirmation.

In a busy day, President Kennedy also:

—Received a briefing on the latest intelligence reports dealing with the international situation. This confidential briefing was supplied by Gen. Andrew J. Goodpaster, who had served former President Eisenhower in that capacity. The White House said Goodpaster will stay on for an indefinite period.

—Dropped in on a meeting of the Democratic National Committee and promised to cooperate "in every possible way" in future political action.

—Named Charles Murphy, who had served as chief legal adviser to former President Harry S. Truman, as undersecretary of agriculture.

—Welcomed Truman, who hiked to the executive mansion from his downtown hotel after receiving an invitation from Kennedy.

The President, shunning hat or outercoat, made a point to go out to the driveway to greet the man who occupied the White House eight years ago.

Truman, who once opposed Kennedy's bid for his party's nomination, conducted Kennedy on a tour of the White House and they chatted over coffee in the upstairs living quarters.

The White House said about four million persons now are receiving surplus food under the distressed areas relief program.

The Kennedy order is expected to increase the number who benefit, as well as the amount, variety and quality of the food they get.

Pierre Salinger, the new White House press secretary, said it is impossible to say at this time how much the added food distribution will cost. Another Kennedy aide told a news conference the government now is spending about $36 million a month on this program.

At present, Salinger said, the average beneficiary receives about five cents worth of food a day. This value would be virtually doubled by the new Kennedy order, he said.

According to estimates, the program now provides only 35 per cent of the nutrition considered essential for subsistence, Salinger said. The Kennedy directive will boost that percentage, Salinger said, but there was no immediate indication on the extent.

Distributed now are flour, corn meal, rice, dry milk, eggs and lard. The White House did not say what other food items will be added.

Surplus food currently is distributed in about 1,100 counties and 120 cities and towns, Salinger said.

BLUEPRINT FOR ROBBERY, a documentary motion picture on the motives and procedure of the notorious Brink's robbery carried out in Boston 11 years ago will appear in Jacksonville at the Times theatre starting Friday, January 27.

Bryon Foy, center, producer of the movie which required more than 5 years of research is flanked by John B. Martin of the Journal Courier on the left, and Barney Lewis of Radio Station WLDS on the right at a meeting in Springfield last week.

Foy was in Springfield to talk with theatre managers throughout Illinois and members of various news media. He is the eldest of the 7 little Foys. Foy has etched his name among the motion picture greats during his 30-year career. He has produced such toprated documentary pictures as "Guadacanal Diary," "I Was A Communist For the FBI," "Canyon City" and others.

Martin and Lewis interviewed Foy along with Times Manager Howard Busey at a luncheon. A tape recording of the interview will be aired over WLDS this week.

Foy said the $2,700,000 taken in the Brink's Robbery has never been recovered. More than $1 million was burned in an attempt to throw off FBI investigators.

Foy recommended the picture for the entire family. "Blueprint For Robbery" will open Friday at the Times in Jacksonville.

Reds Proclaim Virgin Land Deal Holds Promise

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP)—Despite crop failures and bad management, Premier Khrushchev insists his pet virgin lands project has been worthwhile in opening up new sources of foodstuffs and capital.

In a speech to the Communist party Central Committee's long meeting on the shortcomings of Soviet agriculture, Khrushchev again assailed top-level leadership in the Ukraine and other farm areas.

Parts of the 3 hour and 25 minute address, made Wednesday, were published today in Pravda and the final installment came out tonight in Izvestia. In it Khrushchev called for increases in the production of sheep, chicken and cattle.

The virgin lands are huge areas put under the plow for the first time on Khrushchev's orders. The premier told the committee the Republic of Kazakh, in central Asia, spent 44 billion rubles between 1954 and 1960 to open up the area.

He added that the total crop return was valued at 76 billion rubles and the project had created 35 billion rubles in new capital in the form of improved and newly developed farms.

Khrushchev also filled in some background on the case of Alexei I. Kirichenko, former party chief in the Ukraine now in political obscurity. Khrushchev said Kirichenko panicked in the face of drought and wanted to save what was left of the Ukraine's 1956 corn and sunflower crop by cutting it down before it was ripe. The premier said he intervened personally to prevent early cutting and the crop matured profitably.

However, Kirichenko continued to occupy a top-level position in 1957, when he was made secretary of the party's Central Committee and was not expelled from the Presidium until 1960. What happened in the interim remains a mystery. The current leadership in the Ukraine was under bitter attack at this month's meeting.

ADVERTISE—IT PAYS

Hospital Notes

Farrell Scott, Sr., local contractor, has returned to his home, 127 Wolcott street, after being a surgical patient at Our Saviour's hospital.

E. J. Kearney, who suffered a broken leg the day before Christmas and had been a patient at Wabash Hospital in Decatur, returned to his home in Bluffs Friday via Bates ambulance.

Polaris Submarine Returns Saturday; Job Well Done

NEW LONDON, Conn. (AP)—The nuclear Polaris submarine George Washington made a triumphant return Saturday from a historic mission.

The George Washington skippered by Cmdr. James B. Osborn, was back from history's first underwater missile patrol. She had been operating in an undisclosed area for more than two months.

The submarine, with her cargo of 16 nuclear-tipped Polaris missiles intact, nosed into the Navy's State Pier in near zero weather. She was greeted by members of families of the 10 officers and 90 men crew.

The George Washington had sailed from here for Charleston, S. C., Oct. 27. She went on station Nov. 15.

Sister ships in commission are the Patrick Henry and the Robert E. Lee.

The George Washington is America's first submarine designed to fire the Polaris missile from underwater or surface. She was launched in June, 1959 and commissioned six months later.

The George Washington is an unusually long and heavy submarine, even by atomic age standards. She measures 380 feet from bow to stern and has displacements of 5,400 tons on the surface and 6,700 tons in her natural element.

She was launched on the same ways where seven years ago the famed A-sub Nautilus plunged into the Thames River here and began the nuclear submarine age. The GW cost more than $100 million.

Her builders say she is capable of unleashing more devastation at one time from her 16 firing tubes than could have been caused by the total fire power of the Navy between the American Revolution and World War II.

The GW operated with fully trained twin crews. Osborn heads the blue crew, which will be replaced by the gold crew under Cmdr. John L. From. The plans are to alternate the crews every two months.

BABY SITTER HELD WITHOUT CHARGE

CHICAGO (AP) — Mrs. Esther Lacey, 32-year-old baby sitter, told police Saturday she shot a neighbor woman who came to return the baby to its parents because the woman became abusive and repeated profanities.

Mrs. Gale Johnson, 36, was in fair condition with a bullet wound in the abdomen.

The 3½-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lemon, whom Mrs. Lacey said she was holding when she fired a .32 caliber revolver at Mrs. Johnson, was not injured. Investigators found the weapon hidden in Mrs. Lacey's apartment.

Mrs. Lacey admitted she drank four cans of beer before the shooting, police said. She told investigators she was caring for Timothy Lemon in her apartment while the Lemons and Johnsons went to a neighborhood tavern.

Police said Mrs. Lemon and Mrs. Johnson left the tavern to prepare lunch for their husbands who remained there a little longer. After the shooting, Mrs. Johnson staggered to the Lemon apartment and collapsed.

Pancake And Sausage Supper At New Berlin

NEW BERLIN—The annual pancake and sausage supper sponsored by the Men's Community Club is being held Saturday, Jan. 28, with serving from 4 to 7 in the fairgrounds building at New Berlin. Ralph Frank, member of the committee in charge of the project, reports that meat from the whole hog—and butchered locally—will again be used this year. Other committee members are Floyd Vincent, Ray Maginn, Walter Breeding and Al Trimble.

The New Berlin Woman's Club annually holds a bake and food sale in conjunction with the supper. The committee in charge requests that all club members are to have their contributions of food, including dressed poultry, baked foods, jellies, pickles, etc., at the fair building by 3 o'clock in the afternoon, if possible. If convenient, the foodstuffs are to be brought in boxes or sacks. Mrs. M. B. Summers is chairman of the bake sale project.

Students Help Drive

The students of the New Berlin high school have contributed to the March of Dimes, with at total of $40.05 collected. Students of the school gave $8.04, and an additional $32.01 was collected in the "blanket collection" at the Pawnee-New Berlin basketball game.

Walnut Grove Club Of Cass Meets At Cafe

VIRGINIA—The Walnut Grove Club met in the Highway Cafe, in the Agenda room, for the January meeting. Miss Mildred Dinwiddie as hostess was assisted by Mrs. Elmer Sudbrink and Miss Miriam Cline. A carry-in dinner was served at 12:30 to the twenty members present and one guest, Mrs. Mae Allen, of Waverly.

Roll call was answered by "What I Would do If I suddenly got $60,000." Answers were varied and interesting. The new president, Mrs. Clyde Walbert presided for the program. Minutes were read by Mrs. Chester Carls. Mrs. Charles Quigg assisted in collecting dues as each member responded to the roll call. Several communications were read. A number were absent on account of illness and the president wished them all a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Elmer Sudbrink, who has traveled extensively in Europe, told in a charming manor of the recent trip she and her husband made abroad. Many interesting experiences were related and a collection of souvenirs was displayed on a table and added greatly to the enjoyment of her talk as each was shown, and described. Several pictures and snap shots were also shown, including a number of Madonna prints.

The next meeting will be held at the Walbert home, February 8. Discussion on unusual anecdotes of Washington and Lincoln will be feature of the program.

Dreams For Home Town Raised By Sheldon Citizens

SHELDON, Iowa (AP)—Did a dream of doing something big for her home town lead Burnice Iverson Geiger to embezzle $2 million from the Sheldon National Bank?

That possibility was raised Saturday by some residents of this small northwest Iowa town of 4,600 persons.

Mrs. Geiger, 38, is in jail in Sioux City on a federal charge of embezzling $2,126,869 from the bank, where she had been employed for 35 years. She was assistant cashier and a member of the board of the bank, and the daughter of the bank president, W. T. Iverson, 83.

Since disclosure of the embezzlement last Tuesday, which led to turning the bank over to federal authorities for liquidation, the major topic of conversation in town has been, "What did she do with the money?"

Evidence indicates a sizable chunk may have gone into Northern Biochemical Corp., a Sheldon feed firm which expanded rapidly since its start in 1959.

The firm employed Elliott Roosevelt, son of the late president, as its economic advisor a few weeks ago. He is expected here over the weekend to help clear up difficulties encountered by the firm since the bank closed.

Company spokesmen have disclosed that Mrs. Geiger owned 130,000 of the company's 350,000 shares of stock, which she purchased at more than $1 a share. Harold Kistner Jr., ousted Friday as president of the firm, said Mrs. Geiger also had purchased considerable quantities of "trade paper" from the company.

"She could have been convinced that Northern Biochemical Corp. was a good thing for the town and needed to be encouraged," said one local businessman. Like most Sheldon residents he didn't want his name used in any comment relating to Mrs. Geiger.

Man Pronounced Dead Was Alive At County Morgue

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)— A 78-year-old man who was declared dead at a hospital and taken to the county morgue where he was found to be alive, remained critically ill and in a coma Saturday.

Leo Happel was found on the floor of his rented room Friday night by a police officer who had been asked by a brother of Happel to break in the closed door.

Officers Richard Barnett and Robert Bellows took the unconscious man to County Emergency Hospital. There Dr. John McAnlis, a physician on duty, examined Happel and detecting no heart beat or breathing, signed a form certifying that he was dead. The officers then took Happel to the morgue.

When a blanket was lifted from Happel's face, the officers and morgue attendants noticed movement in his throat. Then they saw his chest moving although they could not detect a pulse. The officers rushed Happel back to the emergency hospital, administering oxygen en route. A re-examination showed Happel was breathing eight times a minute and had a blood pressure of 60.

Happel's sister, Rose Wagner, had already been notified that her brother was dead. She was informed later that the report was incorrect.

Authorities said Happel had been under treatment for throat cancer. They speculated that his heart might have been restarted in a bump in the ambulance ride.

Dr. Harold Coon, superintendent at the County General Hospital said Happel was presumed dead when first brought to the emergency hospital and the physician certified him as dead when he could detect no heart beat or breathing. Dr. Coon said it was possible that the obstruction in the windpipe cleared spontaneously in the ambulance on the way to the morgue and Happel started breathing again.

MOTHER, THREE CHILDREN LEAP 25 FEET TO SAFETY

CHICAGO (AP) — Mrs. Dora Mae Howell, 26, and her three children leaped 25 feet to safety Saturday from a second floor window of a burning apartment building.

One of the children, 5-year-old Ambrose Bratton, was hospitalized with a leg injury. The other two, John, 4, and Gregory, 3, were caught by a passerby.

Mrs. Howell tossed a mattress out the window to cushion her jump to the street.

The blaze spread up the front stairway of the three-story frame building, driving about 20 residents into the near-zero cold. Damage was estimated at $500.

Trout flesh varies in color depending upon the kind of food the fish has eaten.

Castro's Offer To Begin Anew Gets Cool Reception

By HAROLD K. MILKS

HAVANA (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro's offer to let bygones be bygones and start fresh with President Kennedy was accompanied by such conditions that many here feel it will receive scant welcome in Washington.

But most of the Cuban prime minister's supporters cheered his offer to "begin anew" as more proof of Castro's desire for peace and understanding with all nations.

Castro made the peace bid in a 2-hour and 10-minute "demobilization speech" Friday night to thousands of militiamen summoned to protect Cuba against an invasion from the United States that never came. An analysis Saturday showed Castro is laying down what are believed here to be impossible demands for peace with the Kennedy administration.

His asking price for a new start is complete renunciation by the United States of all forms of support for whatever groups here or abroad oppose his leftist regime.

"The president of the United States in taking possession (of his office) talked about 'beginning anew,'" Castro said. "We for our part also say: Let's begin anew."

But he added Cuba will judge the Kennedy administration by deeds rather than words.

"We want to know if they (the United States) will continue dropping arms by parachute to counterrevolutionaries," he said, "if they will continue maintaining military training camps for Cuban exiles, if they will continue organizing mercenary armies against us."

There was no hint that Cuba was in any way responsible for the diplomatic break with Washington and no suggestion that Castro's own words and policies contributed to the rupture between two once friendly nations.

Instead, the speech was filled with criticism of the Eisenhower administration, which was blamed for everything wrong with Cuban-American relations. They were broken by Washington after Castro limited the U. S. Embassy staff here to 11 persons.

A sounding of opinion among Latin-American diplomats here reflected strong doubts that Washington would warm up to Castro's bid for political peace.

CHRISTMAS TREE VENDOR'S CASE DISMISSED FRIDAY

CHICAGO (AP)—A perplexed judge Friday dismissed a Wisconsin Christmas tree vendor's assault and larceny charges against a Chicago policeman.

Martin Hansen of Three Lakes, Wis., told Judge Cecil Smith in Municipal Court that Detective Kenneth Anderson made a down payment of $5 on a $15 tree.

Later, Anderson came back, got the tree and put it in a squad car. He refused to pay the $10 balance, Hansen told the judge, and threatened Hansen with his service revolver.

But, Anderson said it was like this: He paid $5, the full price of the tree. When he came to pick it up, Hansen tried to collect $10 more. "I told him to get lost. I didn't threaten him," Anderson said.

The U. S. Government Printing Office, the largest such establishment in the world, was created by act of Congress in 1860.

FAN BREEZES

BY STAN SPOTTS

Journal Courier Sports Editor

Congratulations to Winchester High and to the Wildcats on another successful Invitational Tournament which was completed Friday night with a 79-72 victory over Griggsville. I would like to thank principal Russell Wilson, coach Jack Renfro and others too numerous to mention for being such genial hosts which was very much appreciated not only by us but by the other participating schools as well. We received every accomodation possible and believe me it's a pleasure to work with such fine people. This personal touch insures a successful tournament and smooth running operation!

—O—

The win was number 16 without a loss for Winchester and marked the third straight year it has walked off with top honors in its own tournament. The Wildcats also won the Illinois Valley Conference Tournament for the third consecutive time in December under Renfro, who is marking his third anniversary at the Wildcat helm. Only one tourney title has evaded this Winchester combination and it's probably one of the most important to them—a Regional Championship. But rest assured the Wildcats and Renfro have this goal in mind when the first week of March rolls around.

—O—

Trying to select an all-tourney team would be a gross injustice to the players as there were some outstanding performers. The two nights we attended we saw six different teams in action. The players catching our attention were: Winchester's Bill Robinson, Dewey Savage, John Schofield and Bill Brockhouse; Griggsville's Corky Shelton, Ronnie Goacher and Bruce Baker; Greenfield's Ronnie Short and Wilbert Wellhausen; Bluffs' Burl Fargo and Lee Fredrick; Franklin's Danny Crow and Jerry Allen; White Hall's Sam Campbell and Larry DeSha. Don't ask us to pick the best cheerleading contingent if it is based on ability. We thought Franklin had the most attractive girls although Griggsville, Greenfield and Winchester could claim the same honors. Besides, we're too busy keeping track of statistics and players to really judge the girls. Also, we are getting too old.

—O—

Can't help but tell this one on Ronnie Tomhave's grandfather, who witnessed a JHS basketball game recently. It was the first game the 82-year-old gentleman had witnessed and he enjoyed everything but, "Those fool girls out there yelling all the time." We could write an article the way we think cheerleaders should conduct themselves at a ball game but it would be wasted words. Here are just a few suggestions however. First—keep seated while the game is in progress unless the gym is packed. Fans paid to see the game, not the cheerleaders. The thing we dislike most occurs before every free throw and is uncalled for. Just as their respective player steps to the free throw line the cheerleaders come up with this needless little saying, "Ba-rump, Ba-rump, ba-rump (has to be rolled on the tongue), Sink it John, S-I-N-K——IT. Come now girls, is this yell necessary? This could be a good reason why there are so many missed charity tosses.

—O—

We hope George Danhaus, who coaches Bluffs, maintains his sense of humor after his Bluejays finished fourth in the Winchester tourney via two straight setbacks. Bluffs, seeded second, came into the tourney with an 11-1 record but wound up with a 12-3 mark. Rocket coach Bob Winstead and I were discussing with Danhaus hotel accomodations during the state tourney and George claims he is going to stay at the same one this year. I couldn't place the name of the hotel in Champaign so I quizzed him further. He said, "Why it's one of the best in town. I asked the room clerk how much the rooms were and he told me $1.50—in advance." Does it have all the modern conveniences? Big George replied, "Why sure. I had hot and cold running cockroaches the entire time I was there." 'Nough said but that's George's outlook on life. What gets me is he can say these witty things without ever cracking a smile. I guess Danhaus could be termed a poor man's Ed Sullivan.

—O—

The largest and smallest members of the Western Illinois football team have won themselves $50 each. Deke Pollard, who married the former Brenda Harris of Jacksonville, and Dwight Sellers, 320 pound guard from LaHarpe, split a $100 scholarship award intended for the letterman with the best academic performance during the grid campaign. Both players are seniors and following graduation plan to coach and teach. Pollard hails from Roodhouse and played softball for the State Hospital Redlegs this past summer.

—O—

Did you know that—JHS' Ronnie Tomhave and Bluffs' Burl Fargo are cousins—Triopia's Don Kemp was offered the head football post at West Aurora if he took over next month but the board of directors frowned on this and you can't blame them—Darrell Spang, former Bloomington grid star, may not be at Winchester when next fall rolls around—Bill Gross, insurance salesman and former IC athletic star, is planning to work baseball this spring which should take some of the heavy schedules off the shoulders of Tom Mussatto and Dale Batty—Neil Williams, MacMurray's assistant basketball coach, who has starred on the diamond for three seasons with the Highlanders, is also thinking of joining the men-in-blue ranks this spring and this would give Jacksonville five registered baseball officials — Dave Bone, who was watched by thousands on television Saturday against Michigan State, called Purdue's Terry Dischinger one of the finest players he's ever watched. He termed Dischinger 'The Ghost' before the newspaper writers came up with the phrase. Dave, a pre-med student, is seriously thinking of giving up the sport next season to concentrate more on his studies although he is trying to arrange his schedule which would enable him to play. Against Ohio State Bone scored seven points in four minutes while holding Jerry Lucas to three but in a starting role against Minnesota he collected only two points while playing most of the game. Dave knows he isn't good enough to play pro ball and that he continues with basketball all he'll have is a glorified scrap-book which doesn't stack up to the dedicated life of a doctor or whatever field he chooses.

—O—

An article last spring in this column told of the plans to improve Illinois School for Deaf gymnasium by putting in a new floor painting the ceiling white and in general dressing the place up. Ellsworth Rigor of Chapin called me on this Friday night in Triopia's 62-25 win over the Tigers and it so happened Art Yates was standing nearby. Left without an explanation Yates saved the day with a simple 'It's in the state budget.' So maybe next year Ellsworth.

Bonnies Crack Fast Break For 96-76 Decision

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—St. Bonaventure cracked the fast-break whip Saturday night to beat tough Canisius, 96-76, before 11,787 fans.

The second-ranked Bonnies got a fine 28-point performance from Tom Stith as they ran their season record to 15-1. But sophomore Fred Crawford provided the first half fireworks as the Bonnies locked it up early.

Crawford counted four straight baskets, including three stunning fast breaks, as St. Bona built a 33-15 lead with the game only 14 minutes old. Before they were through, the Bonnies had run their margin as high as 25 points.

Phil Skilnik and Bill Bennett came off the bench to lead a second half Canisius rally that cut the edge to 14 at one stage.

Bill O'Connor took the honors for Canisius with 26 points as the Griffins dropped their third in nine starts.

Purdue Edges Iowa In AP Press Ratings

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—Purdue's Boilermakers swung their hammers in slow motion Saturday and knocked over Iowa's Hawkeyes, No. 4 nationally in the Associated Press ratings, 47-41.

Purdue led 23-14 at the half in the meeting of teams unbeaten in Big Ten play.

Iowa, coming to the end of a 10-game winning string, trailed only 41-39 with less than two minutes to play and tried to rattle the Boilermakers with a full court press. It only succeeded in committing fouls that let Purdue expand its margin.

Terry Dischinger, U.S. Olympic team member, led Purdue scoring with 19 points. The Big Ten scoring leader operated with a bandaged middle finger on his right hand, cut in a chemistry laboratory accident Tuesday.

Don Nelson was high for Iowa with 13 points.

Both teams used a zone defense effectively. Iowa led early but Purdue pulled around at 14-13, then made the next nine points for a cushion it hoarded the rest of the game.

Swim Relays To New Trier

WINNETKA, Ill. (AP)—New Trier High school set two national interscholastic records Saturday in winning the seventh annual Indian Swim relays.

Terry Townsend broke the 400-yard free style mark in the time of 4:00.3. Teammate Dave Lyons was second with 4:01.6 as both erased the previous record of 4:03.5 by Gary Heinrich of Berkeley, Calif., in 1958.

New Trier's 400-yard free style relay team of Townsend, Lyons, Dale Kiefer and Fred Schmidt was timed in 3:23.4. The old record was set by Los Altos, Calif., last year in 3:25.

New Trier piled up 112 points to defeat defending champion Evanston, which finished with 98½. Hinsdale had 65½, Rockford East 63, Rockford West 53, Glenbrook 47½, Highland Park 40½ and Maine East 29.

PROBE FORMATION OF NEW CONFERENCE

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Formation of a six-member scheduling organization that might be developed into a new athletic conference was announced Saturday by officials at Washington University.

Other members of the group are the University of Chicago and Wheaton College in Illinois and DePauw, Valparaiso and Wabash in Indiana. It is called the Great Lakes Association.

Chancellor Ethan A. H. Shepley and Athletic Director Harry Burrus of Washington said the group hopes to form a conference later, perhaps adding other schools with a similar de-emphasized sports policy.

"The strong similarity between our academic policies and those of the other five schools will serve as a basis for this alliance," Shepley said.

Washington has been an independent since it de-emphasized sports and pulled out of the Missouri Valley Conference in 1947.

TATUM POSTS BOND

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Reece (Goose) Tatum Saturday slowly shuffled $5,000 in small bills out of a brown paper bag and posted bond with U.S. Commissioner Madden Hill.

The basketball star's bond guarantees his appearance at a future hearing in Kansas City on charges that he filed no income tax returns for 1956 and 1957.

A federal grand jury there indicted him Friday, just before his team's exhibition appearance here. He's charged with failure to pay federal taxes on an income of $93,821.66 over the two-year span.

SURPRISING VICTORY

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP)—Dyrol Burleson of the University of Oregon opened a week's exhibition tour of New Zealand Saturday with a surprising victory over World distance ace Murray Halberg in a 1,500-meter grass race.

Burleson's blazing finishing kick in the last 200 yards got him to the tape a stride in front of the New Zealander in 3 minutes, 47.4 seconds. Halberg, Olympic 5,000-meter champion who bettered the 2-mile indoor record last Saturday night in Portland, Ore., was timed in 3:47.7.

His wife, Dorothy, witnessed the accident from the shore. The Coast Guard aided in recovery of the body.

Milwaukee's Lew Burdette hit only five batters last season but one of his pitches broke the left wrist of Dick Groat, Pittsburgh shortstop.

CHICAGO TRACK CLUB SETS MARK

CHICAGO (AP) — The University of Chicago Track Club relay team set an American Indoor record Saturday in the 880-yard relays in an invitational meet of Chicago area teams.

The team was made up of Ron Etherton, Ed Houston, Al Jacobs and Brooks Johnson.

Loyola of Chicago finished second in the event. No team point totals were kept in the meet.

OHIO STATE WINS 13TH STRAIGHT

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio State won its 13th straight game, beating Minnesota's ball-control tactics 75-56 Saturday night.

Ohio State, led by John Havelicek and Larry Siegfried, settled down to an aggressive, ball hocking defensive game and went ahead to stay, 9-8 on a three-point play by All-America Jerry Lucas.

The Buckeye's Lucas scored 22. Havlicek added 16.

John J. Becker, Composer, Dies

CHICAGO (AP)—John Joseph Becker, 74, a composer and music educator, died at his home in suburban Wilmette Friday of undisclosed causes.

Mr. Becker wrote seven symphonies, beginning in 1912. His last, based on the Sermon on the Mount, was composed in 1947. In 1958 Leonard Bernstein and the Philharmonic Orchestra of New York performed his "Symphonia Brevis, No. 3" as part of a series on important American composers.

He was a member of a group which broke away from imitation of European music for the first time and pioneered in the composition of uniquely American music.

He was composer in residence at Barat College, Lake Forest, and served as director of music at the University of Notre Dame and as chairman of the fine arts division of the College of St. Thomas, St. Paul, Minn.

Mr. Becker also was a former regional director of the International Society for Contemporary Music in the Chicago area and was on the editorial board of the American Composers Alliance.

Surviving are his widow, Evelyn; a daughter, Mrs. Guy Graser Harrison, wife of the conductor of the Oklahoma City Symphony, and three sons, John, Eugene and Bruce.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday in St. Francis Xavier Church, Wilmette.

APPARENT HOLDUP IN DRIVER'S DEATH

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Two men trying to start a stalled car glanced into an apparently unoccupied taxicab Saturday and discovered the body of a cab driver who had been shot in the head.

The victim was Melvin Boonshaft, 52, of suburban University City. He was employed by the Laclede Cab Co. of St. Louis.

Police in suburban Brentwood where the body was found said Boonshaft was the victim of an apparent holdup.

His billfold was missing, but there was $8 in his shirt pocket and his wristwatch was undisturbed.

Boonshaft's body was sprawled across the front seat of his cab, his head against the door on the passenger side.

Police said he had been shot once in the left temple, apparently with a .32 caliber automatic. A cartridge casing was found on the floor of the rear seat.

The meter on the cab showed a $10.35 fare.

Neighbors in the Audubon Park apartment development where the cab was parked heard no shots, police said, but reported seeing the vehicle Friday night.

Quincy College pulled away from Illinois College in the second half, outscoring the host five, 44-36, to garb an 87-72 victory over Coach Bill Merris' Blueboys Saturday night in the hilltop gymnasium. The Blueboys missed six 1 and 1 attempts in the second half and a total of 17 for the game, 10 in the final 20 minutes of play, which led to their eighth loss in 11 outings.

Quincy shot 41 per cent and Illinois College hit 37 per cent.

Little Hits 17 Points In Mac Murray's Win Over Lewis Five, 80-60

The MacMurray College Highlanders dominated the game all the way as they rolled to a 80-60 victory over the highly touted Lewis College Flyers.

Lewis held the lead only once in the contest, 20-19, midway in the first half. The Highlanders then regained control and worked to a comfortable 42-29 halftime lead.

The Flyers whittled MacMurray's lead down to six points, 47-41, after six minutes of the second half, but buckets by Marv Hohenberger, Ron Price, and Larry Krulac quickly boosted the Highlanders' edge to 12, 54-42. The regulars moved to a 18 point lead, 68-50, with four minutes remaining in the game, when Coach Bill Wall brought in the reserves, who added two more points to the margin, as the Highlanders won by 20, 80-60.

Gary Little of Jacksonville led the scoring for the winning effort, with 17 points. He was followed by Hohenberger with 13, Tom Flynn with 12, and Krulac and Price with 11 apiece. John Valaitis and Al Latham led the Lewis couse, with 12 counters each.

MacMurray hit 25 of 61 attempts from the field for 40.5 per cent, while Lewis connected on 19 of 52 attempts for 38 per cent. Both teams hit well in their many chances at the charity line, MacMurray making 30 of 41 for 73 per cent, and Lewis hitting 24 of 31 for 77 per cent.

The game was an important one for MacMurray, a traditional rival of Lewis for the NAIA small college playoff bid. Last year the clubs split in their two contests, but Lewis received the bid. MacMurray now holds an 11-4 record, and Lewis has won eleven and lost five.

Coach Neil Williams' Junior Clansmen did not fare as well Saturday as did their seniors. The Taylorville All-Stars edged MacMurray 81-79 in a sudden death double overtime heartbreaker. The score had been knotted 75-75 at the end of regular play and 78-78 after the first overtime. Steve Shostrom led the Highlanders scoring with 19 points, and was followed by Bruce Wall with 16 counters.

The Highlanders take a break for semester examinations over the next two weekks, again seeing action February 4 against Southern Illinois University at Alton, and then returning to Jacksonville to take on Illinois College February 6 on the Blueboys' hardwood.

Northwestern Overpowers MSU In Second Half

Wildcats Chalk Up Their First Big 10 Victory, 77-62

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Northwestern put on a second half surge to overpower Michigan State 77-62 Saturday for its first Big Ten basketball victory in four starts.

Northwestern pulled 10 points ahead right after the half and never again was headed in the regionally televised game.

The Wildcats now have a 5-8 overall record.

Michigan State is 4-9 overall and has won only one conference game in five starts, that 81-69 from Michigan last Monday.

Brad Snyder was the big man for the Wildcats with 20 points. Ralph Wells scored 17 points and Bill Cacciatore had 14 points. Ted Williams had 17 points for the losers and Dick Hall managed 14.

The two second division teams started out on even terms with the score 10-10 with six minuts gone. Michigan State pulled ahead to a 20-12 lead but then let Northwestern off the hook.

The score was tied again at 26-all with four minutes to go in the half and later at 30-30. The teams continued to match points until Northwestern plunked in a basket four seconds before halftime for a 34-32 intermission lead.

Michigan State had a poor shooting percentage in the first half, hitting only 28 per cent of its tries to 39 per cent for Northwestern. Snyder made 10 of his 20 points in the first half.

Northwestern surged ahead at the start of the second half, climbing up to a 47-37 lead within six minutes. Michigan State came within four points of closing the gap midway in the half when the score was 55-51. That was the closest the Spartans came to catching up.

The Wildcats built back to their 10-point lead and had the game virtually sewed up when they were ahead 64-54 with six minutes to go.

Louisville Whips Dayton, 63-50

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Louisville turned on the power in the second half Saturday to roll by Dayton 63-50 in a nationally televised basketball game.

The Flyers, who had run neck and neck with the Cardinals in the opening minutes of the second half, suddenly collapsed and went nearly seven minutes without scoring a point.

The fifth-ranked Cardinals quickly forged ahead by eight points in the last nine minutes and built up their cushion.

Pacing the Cardinals, now 14-2 for the season, was John Turner, whose 14 points was far below his season's average of 22 per game.

High-point man for Dayton, which absorbed its fifth loss against 10 wins, was Tom Hatton with 18.

RUSSELL RALLIES TO WIN SENIORS GOLF TOURNEY

BELLEAIR, Fla. (AP) — Jack Russell, a 55-year-old former major league pitcher from Clearwater, rallied late in the match Saturday to defeat George Haggarty, a Detroit attorney, and win the 27th annual American Seniors Golf Championship.

Haggarty held a one hole edge throughout most of the match play, but Russell surged back on the 16th to even the match, won the 17th to go ahead and halved the 18th for the victory.

Russell is the only co-medalist in the history of the tournament to win the championship. Haggarty, seniors left handed champion, was heavily favored throughout the last stages of the tournament.

NFL Annual Meet Starts Tuesday

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League's annual meeting will be held here starting Tuesday with only one real problem to solve.

"We have to decide on a formula to stock the new entry, the Minnesota Vikings," said Commissioner Pete Rozelle. "But we really don't expect to have any trouble."

The Vikings will get three players from each of 12 other teams in the league. Dallas, a newcomer last season, is expected.

Once that is settled, the Eastern and Western conferences will decide where to place Dallas and Minnesota.

"Right now," said Rozelle, "I'd say the sentiment is in favor of Dallas going into the Eastern conference and Minnesota the Western."

Dana X. Bible Of Texas To Retire

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The man largely responsible for fashioning the University of Texas' Golden Era in sports, Dana X. Bible, will retire Sept. 1.

Bible announced his retirement Saturday on the anniversary of his first contract with Texas, which stipulated one main goal—the rebuilding of the university's football prominence. Bible signed Jan. 21, 1937, and he achieved it within three seasons.

Now 70, Bible said:

"Having reached three score and 10, I feel it's time to go to the sideline. I believe I've reached the slippers - pipe - and -rocking - chair age."

The university hired Bible away from Nebraska, where he won six championships in eight years.

Bible quit active coaching in 1946 to become athletic director at Texas.

COAST LEAGUE HAS PLAN FOR PITCHERS

SEATTLE (AP) — A weak-hitting pitcher would sit on the bench while another player took the hurler's turns at bat under a plan proposed Saturday by the Pacific Coast Baseball League.

Directors authorized Dewey Soriano, president, to present the idea to baseball's National Rules Committee.

If not approved for all of organized ball, the Pacific Coast League will give the idea a trial this year if the committee permits.

"We would like it made optional with the manager before each game as to whether his pitcher takes his turn at bat," Soriano said. "If not, some other player would be named to hit for the pitcher, becoming a regular member of the lineup.

"This would be the first major change in baseball in 60 years," Soriano said. "We believe it would be good for the game."

Also to be suggested is elimination of pitching when a man is to be intentionally walked. The defensive manager merely would signal for the walk and the batter would go to first base immediately.

10 TWIN-BILLS, 38 NIGHT GAMES AT COMISKEY PARK

CHICAGO (AP)—Ten doubleheaders, nine of them on Sunday, and 38 night games highlight the Chicago White Sox 1961 home baseball schedule released Saturday.

The opener of the 81-game slate is with the Minnesota Twins April 18, eight days after the Sox inaugurate the American League season in Washington before President John F. Kennedy.

The only doubleheader not on Sunday will be with the Baltimore Orioles Memorial Day (May 30). The Sox are on the road the other holidays, meeting the Twins both July 4th and Labor Day (Sept. 4).

30TH MONTE CARLO AUTO RALLY BEGINS

MONTE CARLO (AP)—More than 300 cars headed onto the highways of Europe from eight starting points Saturday as the 30th annual Monte Carlo auto rally began under remarkably good weather conditions.

Many of the routes were icy, but there was no fresh snow to hamper the drivers on their three-day spin to this Mediterranean principality.

The largest field, 85 cars, left from Stockholm with 380 miles of icy roads ahead on the first leg of their trip, to the coast, with a ferry to Denmark. Other competitors started from Glasgow, Warsaw, Athens, Frankfurt, Lisbon, Paris, and Monte Carlo itself. Those starting here drive a route through southern France.

Those who reach Monte Carlo will compete in a final round of tests to determine the 1961 champion.

HAWKEYES GRIDDER INJURED

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP)—Chester E. Williams, 22, tackle on the Iowa football team, suffered a spinal injury in a one-car crash early Saturday.

Hospital authorities indicated the injury might end the 230-pound junior's football career. He also suffered a possible skull fracture and scalp cuts.

Williams and Jean Ferguson, 23, of Iowa City, were injured when their car crashed into a railroad crossing signal at an intersection near North Liberty.

JHS Freshmen Defeat Havana For Title, 48-46

Jacksonville High's freshmen survived a second half rally to defeat Havana Saturday night in the finals of the JHS Frosh basketball tournament at the bowl, 48-46. The win enabled JHS to claim its fifth tourney title in the eight-year history of the event.

Don Carter kept Jacksonville in the game all the way with some clutch shooting especially in the waning minutes of the championship playoff. Carter hit his first five of six attempts to spearhead and early 12-0 lead for Al Rosenberger's quintet but Coach Dick Fricke's Ducks sliced back to trail by eight at the end of the first quarter, 17-9.

Both teams scored nine points in the second canto and JHS controlled a 26-18 spread at the half.

Havana came on with a bang in the third canto on some fine shooting by Steve Hackman and pulled to within two points of the lead, 33-31, with 2:34 showing but the Jacks crept ahead once again to lead by seven after three quarters.

Steve Daniel played an important role in the final quarter and kept JHS out in front with his rebounding. The Ducks slowly trimmed the deficit and got within two points, 48-46, with 1:03 left after Jacksonville had missed a 1-1 bonus attempt.

The Crimsons then missed two more one and one bonus attempts and Havana one before the Ducks took time out with two seconds remaining and the ball in their possession. They got off the final desperation shot but it was off course and the Jacks had their ninth win of the season in 10 starts.

Carter's 23 points were high for the game followed closely by Hackman's 22 for the losers.

CONSOLATION

Rushville rested throughout the first quarter and then put their offense into motion and rolled over the Winchester Wildcats, 61-42, in the race for third place. The Wildcats had taken a 12-10 lead at the end of the first period, but Rushville's superior height began to take its toll and the noticably tired ball clubs began to fall into a pattern of fouling and scoring on fast breaks and shots from far out. Rushville continually piled up the winning margin as Winchester relied only on the fine hussle and good shooting of Spencer. Paul Runkle and Ted Bartlett topped the winners' scoring with Runkle collecting 18 points and Bartlett getting 19. Spencer was top man for the Wildcats with 17.

AFTERNOON SESSION

In the initial game of the tournament, Coach Al Rosenberger's Crimson freshmen had little trouble in overwhelming the Winchester Wildcats, 69-35. Although the Jacksonville yearlings downed the Wildcats by such a huge margin, they were not too impressive. The contest was a ragged, rough and tumble affair with a total of 65 fouls being called against the two clubs, 37 against Winchester and 28 against Jacksonville. Some of the raggedness was due to the full court press which the Wildcats used and some others were due to the fruitless efforts by the Winchester freshmen to outrebound the taller Crimson front-liners.

Jacksonville led 16-7 at the end of the first period and 30-19 at half. They were never in any doubt and it was only a matter of the clock running out before the Jacks had a chance to score more points. Rosenberger inserted his second and third teams into the contest early in the third quarter, but Winchester could not match even their pace.

Steve Daniels almost carried the Crimsons in the first half as he popped in 14 points on 6 baskets and 2 free throws. Jacksonville amassed a grand total of 23 charity tosses in 49 attempts. Carter topped the winners' scoring with 16 points, 10 in the second half. Spencer was Winchester's "top gun" with 16.

The second game of the afternoon was a corker. Ed Edwards pushed one through the hoop for the Havana Ducks with 8 seconds remaining in the overtime to give the Ducks a 48-46 extra period win over Rushville. Havana fought back from a 10 point deficit at half time to knot the game in the last few minutes of regulation play and went on to grab the win and trip to the finals. Both teams were rather cold to open the game and Rushville held an 11-7 lead at the eight minute mark. Havana still couldn't find the hoop and the Ducks trailed 24-14 with the contest supposedly half over, but they warmed up in the third and fourth periods and outscored Rushville 13-9 and 13-7 in the final quarters to send the game into the overtime. Scoring was plentiful in the three minute session, with the Ducks getting 8 and Rushville connecting for 6, but it was a bucket by Edwards that decided the outcome. Paul Runkle scored 16 points for Rushville and Jim Greer got 13 but Edwards topped both squads with 17 for the winners.

RUNNING WILD

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Illinois high school basketball teams went to extremes in several of Friday night's games, with three teams scoring more than one hundred points.

Williamsfield defeated Roosevelt of Aledo, 114-96, in one of the highest combined totals in Illinois prep basketball history.

Forman of Manito swamped San Jose, 103-17, providing one of the biggest winning margins on record. A more realistic score was Niantic's 102-66 triumph over Tower Hill.

Rockets Are Defending Champs In 21st Annual Conference Playoff

By STAN SPOTTS

George Danhaus' Bluffs Bluejays have been tabbed the number 1 team to garner first place honors in the 21st annual PMSC Conference Tournament this week at Illinois School for Deaf gymnasium. But many conference observers feel differently about the ratings and predict an upset or two since highly-regarded Triopia and Routt, the defending champs, are seeded second and third, respectively.

The affair should prove to be one of the most interesting in a number of years and just what team will capture the coveted first place prize is anyone's guess because right now they are all on equal footing—that being a neutral floor.

Bluffs is a solid ball club with good height and took fourth place in the 39th annual Winchester Tournament Friday night but it seems as Burl Fargo and Lee Fredrick go, so go the Bluejays. Fargo is carrying better than a 25 point per game average and Fredrick is a fine outside shot and good rebounder. Bluffs has won 12 of 15 starts so far and it would like nothing better than to best its conference foes. The rest of the Bluejay starters are Audrey Gregory, Jim Cox and Gary Bangert.

Two of the top three-seeded quintets, Routt and Triopia, have met once so far this season and the Rockets emerged with a 52-49 win over the Trojans nine days ago on the home court. Bluffs hasn't run into Triopia or Routt yet but is scheduled to do so next month.

Coach Dick Garner's Petersburg Bluejays, who are competing in the conference for the first time, are definitely in contention for the title and could very well be the darkhorse entry. Petersburg is seeded fourth, Virginia fifth, Chandlerville sixth, Meredosia seventh, Perry eighth, and the host Tigers, ninth.

Triopia, 5-1 in conference play and 11-2 for the season, has an experienced quintet that lost to Routt in the league championship game last year, 48-46. The Trojans have scoring balance and plenty of rebounding strength in Anderson, Hansmeier, Dufelmeier, Roegge and Harbin. Their only losses were at the hands of Auburn and Routt.

Coach Bob Winstead's Routt Rockets will be trying for their third straight tournament championship with only one player, center Ed Carroll, standing over 5-9. Carroll is the tallest at 6-2 of the Mighty Mites who are Bucky Sullivan, Jack Lawless, Joe Cora and scoring leader Fred Curtis, a four-year veteran. Jim Johnson, 6-1, who has seen limited action this winter, may weave his way into the starting unit to help the Rockets with their board game. But the lack of height is no handicap to the Rockets, who will and can battle the best of them via a fast break and a solid outshooting attack.

Routt, 12-4 for the year, has more conference victories than any other entry with an undefeated mark of 6-0. The wins came at the expense of Triopia, Meredosia, ISD, Chandlerville, Virginia and Petersburg, who bowed to the Rockets in overtime.

The four-day affair opens Tuesday night with three games starting at six o'clock when Perry plays the host Tigers, the only winless quintet in the tourney field. Triopia meets Meredosia at 7:30 and Petersburg engages John Murray's Virginia five in the nightcap.

Bluffs makes its tourney debut Wednesday against the Perry-ISD winner at 7 o'clock followed by the Routt - Chandlerville contest. Should Bluffs and Routt win their openers then they would open the initial semifinal contest at 7 o'clock Thursday. Winners from the Triopia - Meredosia and Petersburg - Virginia encounters would meet in the other semifinal bout at 8:30 p.m. Thursday. The winners and losers would advance to the championship and consolation brackets, respectively, for Friday's showdown.

Army Nurse Corps Offers Students More Benefits

On February 22nd, the Army Nurse Corps, which is the oldest and largest of the military nursing services will celebrate its 60th birthday. This all commissioned Corps has more than 3300 members stationed at Army installations in the United States and throughout the world.

Leads to BS Degree

Although the Army has inaugurated many fine programs whereby nurses can receive financial assistance while in schools of nursing, one of these current programs, the Army Student Nurse Program, has recently added some additional benefits which should be of special significance to students enrolled in four year programs leading to a BS in nursing education.

Requisites

In applying for the Army Student Nurse Program, a student must have successfully completed two years in her nursing program. Under the new provision, if the student is accepted, the Army will provide for payment of tuition and all other fees as well as textbooks and supplies. She also receives an additional increase in rank during the time spent in the program.

Maintenance If Needed

Students have the choice of participating for one or two years in this program. Junior year participants will hold the rank of E-1 in the Women's Army Corps Reserve and if room and board are not furnished by the school, they will receive more than $200.00 per month. After four months they will be promoted to the rank of E-2 and at the beginning of the senior year these students will hold the rank of E-3. Six months before graduation they will be commissioned as a Second Lieutenant in the Army Nurse Corps and receive a monthly salary of $338.00 if room and board are not furnished by the school.

No Duty Time Change

There is no change in the length of time to be spent on duty in the Army Nurse Corps. Following graduation and licensure, those who have participated in the program for two years will serve on active duty for three years; those who participated only one year will serve two years on active duty.

These changes do not apply to Army Student Nurses in three-year nursing programs. They continue to receive the pay of an enlisted Reservist, an E-1 and E-2, and upon graduation and licensure they will be commissioned as Second Lieutenants in the Army Nurse Corps.

EASY DIRECTIONS FOR COOKING IN LIQUID

Here are some easy directions for better results when cooking meat in liquid. (1) Brown meat on all sides in own fat or lard. Some larger cuts, such as cured pork, corned beef and fresh or cured tongue, are not browned before adding liquid. (2) Season with salt and pepper unless meat is cured. (2) Cover with liquid, cover pan, and simmer (cook below boiling point) until tender. (4) Add vegetables just long enough before end of cooking time to be cooked.

You can fold tiny marshmallows into a fluffy white frosting that is to cover a chocolate layer cake.

The president, Mrs. James Armitage, opened the meeting and conducted a brief business session.

Mrs. Samuel Darley presented Mrs. Raymond Miller who in turn introduced her daughter, Miss Elaine Miller, as guest speaker.

Miss Miller gave an interesting talk on Grafo Analysis. From the first book on handwriting written in 1622, by an Italian scholar, she traced the development of the subject to the present. In 1910 M. N. Bunker began study and research which 18 years later led him to found the International Grafo Analysis Society, Inc., which has been in operation for 33 years. "Whereas psychology is a study of human behaviour" Miss Miller stated, 'grafo analysis is a study of human nature.' Society today, she pointed out, has a great need for the trained grafo analyst, in helping to make adjustments. The commercial and industrial world, too, have use for a qualified grafo analyst in establishing credit and placing employees in positions where they will be able to render the greatest service.

A discussion followed. When Miss Miller, a qualified analyst, answered questions asked by the group.

Mrs. Applebee briefly traced the role that food has played in history from pre-historic days until now. Hunger has always been a motivating force for conquest. Friendship between peoples and nations can only take place if those concerned are contented and to be contented implies a satisfying of hunger.

After the meeting was adjourned a delightful social hour was enjoyed with Mrs. Wright and Mrs. Reynolds presiding at the tea table.

BEEF ROLLS

Here's one more use for leftover roast beef. Cut it into thin slices and top each with a mound of mashed potatoes, seasoned with onion. Roll up and fasten with wooden picks. Brush rolls with meat drippings, butter or margarine and bake in a moderate oven for about 30 minutes.

When a cake recipe calls for "flour," use regular all-purpose flour.

Editorial Comment

No Excuse

The cruel words "unnecessary tragedy" have to be applied to the shocking collapse of an Air Force radar tower in the Atlantic 70 miles south of Long Island.

Both the Air Defense Command and the United States Senate should promptly convene their announced inquiries and seek to fasten responsibility for this disaster where it belongs.

We do not need an investigation, however, to tell us that this was an accident that need not have happened.

The individual or individuals who made the decision to keep this tower manned while it was in an unsafe condition were guilty of a careless risking of other men's lives. That the number of tower personnel had been reduced from a normal 75 does not lessen the offense, nor can it be comfort to the families of the 28 who died.

The elemental facts are plain. This tower off the New Jersey coast had been seriously weakened by the hurricane of mid-September, 1960. Its underpinnings, founded on the bedrock of the continental shelf, were so uncertain as to have earned the tower the rueful nickname of "Old Shaky."

The presence of 14 repairmen among the 28 on the tower is clear evidence that the structure's weaknesses had not yet been remedied. So are the letters crewmen had written to their wives on shore, complaining of the peril.

Obviously there is not the shadow of an excuse for this calamity. Whatever radar vigilance was provided by the continued operation of the tower, it should not have been bought at so high a price.

Certainly there were other means of keeping a proper alert to the possible approach of enemy rockets or aircraft. After all, our extensive eastern, southern and western coasts are not ringed by a chain of such towers. We have only two besides that which now lies at the bottom of the Atlantic.

Neither regular crewmen nor repairmen should have been asked to live on Tower No. 4 until it was entirely "seaworthy," fit to withstand the rigors of such a storm as brought it down on Jan. 15.

Many mistakes have in the past been charged to military inflexibility and thoughtlessness. This could rank as one of the worst.

Resource To Treasure

The social scientists have been telling us for a long time that ours is an aging population, that even as our total numbers boom upward the proportion of elderly people among them is rising more sharply.

As has been well and often noted, this trend has many important effects on current and future American life, not the least being its impact on the make-up of the country's work force.

With the gradual coming of age of the persons born in the great baby boom of World War II and its aftermath, the expectation is there will be a veritable flood of job demands.

Young people entering the labor market want not only jobs, but opportunities for advancement. For the most talented, the prospect of going all the way to the top must be held out. Without that, many companies and other enterprises could not hope to attract the needed people of ability.

To hold out that prospect, however, businesses often are compelled to institute automatic retirement plans for older workers, otherwise there would be no room for the rising new generation of employes.

Yet, while this has obvious fairness from the viewpoint of the younger people, it frequently works hardship on the older workers. To the extent that they must thereafter be supported by private or public pension, they are also an increasing burden on the economy and the national treasury.

In many instances there is no escape from this, nor perhaps should there be. But it is tragic that in all too many cases the greatest cost is not in money but in the loss of a man's talent and experience.

All kinds of enterprises—and the country taken as a whole—build vast investments, in the broad sense of that term, in the individuals who comprise the work force. As they advance through life, many become virtual storehouses of skill and knowledge.

To cast them aside, to end their working days automatically and arbitrarily, is to create great waste both economically and spiritually.

For all its growing numbers, this nation is not so heavily endowed for the colossal struggle with communism that it can afford to toss away its investment in trained, able people.

We should be trying to do everything imaginable to enlarge, not diminish our reservoir of skills and knowledge. We may need every drop in the great pool.

In 1961 we need business and government policies which conserve and enrich the national stockpile of talent. To waste it could be fatal to freedom.

Down to the Sea in Negligence

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Friday was the day the presidency changed hands and Dwight D. Eisenhower's eight years as chief executive moved into the history books, his job done and waiting to be judged. What will the judgment be?

No matter what, it will be long coming because of the nature of the times. What looked like minor actions may prove to have been great victories, what seemed like major successes may prove to have been the roots of disaster.

In the past week Eisenhower tried in several ways to give his own appraisal of his eight years in office. Yet all he said could be summed up in the words of his predecessor, President Truman, before he left office in 1953.

Truman then, looking back over his own record, recalled an inscription on an Arizona tombstone and said it was the greatest epitaph a man could have or hope for: "He done his damndest."

The two retiring presidents used similar language in summing up what they considered their main achievement: preventing another world war and stopping communism from overrunning the earth.

Truman, just a few weeks before he turned the White House over to Eisenhower, pointed to a world globe which Eisenhower had sent him as a present in 1945 and said: "During these eight years, we've kept this old world out of disaster."

This week Eisenhower at his last presidential news conference pointed to his firmness in blocking Communist threats and gambits and picked out as a major accomplishment this: "We have actually stopped many of these risks (created by communism) from becoming realities."

Eisenhower called his big disappointment the failure to get to a place "where he could say it now looks as if permanent peace with justice is really in sight."

This, of course, was a major disappointment for Truman, too. He not only couldn't get close to peace but, at the moment of his retirement, was fighting the Korean War to keep the Red tide back.

The two men's White House careers paralleled each other in several ways.

Truman had the daring and firmness to smash the Communist blockade of Berlin, to intervene to prevent the Russians from gobbling up Greece and Turkey, to go to war in Korea—all to stop communism in its tracks.

The most visibly bold action Eisenhower took was to send troops into Lebanon to stop the Reds from swarming over the Middle East. His firmness no doubt discouraged another Red blockade of Berlin, despite Russian threats.

It was Truman who set up the foreign aid program which Eisenhower continued. It was Truman who created foreign military alliances which Eisenhower not only adopted but expanded.

Yet, while Truman stopped communism, he could not control events at home. By the time he left office the country was split down the middle by McCarthyism, fear of Communists in government, dissension over the Korean War.

Eisenhower, a calmer and less cocky and belligerent man, managed to bring peace not only in Korea but at home, too, until, by the time he ran for his second term in 1956, McCarthyism was dead and dissension pretty much healed.

Perhaps Eisenhower's greatest contribution to the presidency — although he didn't mention it — was as a kind of national pacifier and a bridge between two vital eras of American history.

By his own cheerfulness he was a force in keeping the country calm, or pretty much so, for eight years.

The Communist bloc has been building and hoarding its strength in recent years. It may be confident enough now to try new and far greater adventures than were possible eight years ago.

The great unknown factor in Eisenhower's stewardship is this: Did he do enough to keep abreast of the Russians in missiles and space. He thinks so. Only history and the years ahead will be able to say yes or no.

Dark Green Broccoli Is a Popular Vegetable—and Rightly So

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Broccoli is one of our most valuable vegetables. Rich in vitamins A and C, plus lots of Calcium, iron and other minerals essential for good health, it is also low in calories—only 37 calories in a two-thirds cup serving. And does it taste good!

Savory Fresh Broccoli
(Yield: 6 servings)

1 bunch fresh broccoli (about 2 pounds)
1 inch boiling water, chicken or beef broth
½ teaspoon salt
Ground black pepper to taste
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
Fresh lemon or lime wedges

Wash broccoli and trim. Split large stalks in half or in quarters lengthwise. Place in saucepan with 1-inch boiling water or chicken or beef broth and the ½ teaspoon salt. Bring to boiling point without cover and cook 5 minutes. Cover and boil 15 minutes or until just crisp-tender. Drain, if necessary. Add butter or margarine. Cover and let it melt. Sprinkle with black pepper. Serve hot with wedges or fresh lemon or lime.

Fresh Broccoli Au Gratin
(Yield: 6 servings)

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper
1 cup shredded sharp American cheese
1 bunch (about 1¼ pounds) cooked broccoli
1 cup soft bread crumbs
2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted

Melt butter or margarine in a saucepan. Blend in flour. Add milk and cook until medium thickness, stirring constantly to prevent lumping. Add salt, black pepper and cheese. Place broccoli and cheese sauce in alternating layers in a 6x10x2-inch casserole, beginning with broccoli and ending with cheese sauce. Mix bread crumbs with remaining melted butter or margarine and sprinkle over top. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until crumbs are brown, 30 to 35 minutes.

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "This is my eighth year in television, and I'm jumping into it with a bang."

And with a burst of color, Walt Disney could add. With characteristic enthusiasm, he's plunging into his new season on TV, his first with NBC. The season won't start until next fall, but he's already storing up products.

"The show is being planned to give the big push to color TV," the producer explained. "It's even called 'Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color.'

"In the first show, I'll explain how we started making cartoons silent, then we got sound, then we moved into color. That's when we really started to blossom out. I'll introduce Ludwig Von Drake, who is the best new character we've had in years. He'll give a lecture on the effect of color and will sing a crazy blues song. Then we'll have a science cartoon, 'Donald in Mathemagicland.'

"We're planning a lot of new programs, and 90 per cent of our backlog of TV shows is in color. I could do a whole season of Frontierland: I've got 18 Elfego Bacas alone. And everything we've done in cartoons since 1932 has been in color.

"I think this is just the sort of thing that can push color TV. If people have things they want to see in color, they'll find a way to buy sets. Color adds a great deal to the enjoyment of TV; I saw 'Macbeth,' for example, and it was magnificent."

The show hasn't been scheduled yet, but Disney hopes it will be on Sunday evening, as it has been this year. "We have a rare kind of an audience — split 50-50 between adults and children," he said. "Sunday is a good day for us."

National Cultural Center Could Hush Memorial Critics

By PETER EDSON
Written For NEA

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—A plan to bring together memorials to Theodore Roosevelt, Franklin D. Roosevelt and other great presidents as parts of the proposed National Cultural Center is being talked up here.

The idea has grown more or less spontaneously from general public criticism of the abstract art designs prepared for the two Roosevelt memorials.

Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, T. R.'s daughter, declared the "Celestial Sphere" design prepared to honor her father would "desecrate the memory of anyone."

Similarly, Rep. James Roosevelt of California, F.D.R.'s eldest son, declared in what will probably be the greatest understatement of his career, "I have a feeling father would have been for something a little less modernistic."

With Both Of These Examples of futuristic or art moderne on the pan, there has been considerable feeling expressed that something more living, more creative and more useful, or contributing more to enjoyment of life, would better memorialize the spirits of the two great progressive presidents.

The proposal to combine the two memorials and possibly others in the cultural center was a somewhat natural development. It has met with a generally favorable response.

"I think it is a marvelous idea," says Frank Thompson (D-N.J.), one of the principal sponsors of the cultural center authorization legislation. "I think it would provide much more appropriate memorials to these two great men."

Thompson called the Theodore Roosevelt celestial sphere design a "Jungle-Gym" when it was unveiled last summer. F.D.R. Jr. said the proposed memorial to his father was reminiscent of Stonehenge, the ancient ruins in England.

Backers of the two projects object to incorporating the memorials with others. Neither group wants the importance of the president it wants to honor subordinated.

Each seems to be trying to surpass the Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln memorials, which is difficult if not impossible.

One other criticism frequently given to the "cemetery art," is that the city is already too full of monuments to the past and what it needs is more recognition of the future.

The Answer To This offered by the National Cultural Center is that it is a concept big enough to honor a dozen presidents—or all of them.

The idea of combining a number of memorials in the center has not been placed before its board of trustees, which was appointed by Eisenhower. Officials of the center decline to make any comment, because they don't want to be put in the position of trying to grab others' funds.

Cost of the Franklin D. Roosevelt memorial has been put at 4½ million dollars, all to be raised by public subscription.

The Theodore Roosevelt Memorial Assn. has already raised and spent over $800,000 for purchase of what is now called Theodore Roosevelt Island in the Potomac, and for design of the celestial sphere to be erected on this site.

Actual construction costs have been estimated at $886,000. The association wants Congress to appropriate this sum, since the prospects for raising it by public subscription are dim. The House went along with this last year, but the Senate held it up until designs acceptable by T.R's family could be prepared.

Meanwhile, The National Cultural Center project is not in flourishing condition either. Total cost has been estimated at 75 million dollars, to be raised by public subscription. It was authorized by Congress two years ago, on condition funds be pledged, work started by '63.

So far, the center has raised only 1½ million dollars—and a half-million of that came from the Hattie Strong Foundation. Mrs. Strong's son, L. Corrin Strong, is executive vice chairman of the center.

The plan has been criticized as too grandiose and costly. Broken into projects, as in separate memorials, it might be more feasible.

Cost of grand salon, big enough to take the three Kennedy inaugural balls—has been put at five million dollars; terraces, river-front landing and amphitheater another five million.

Opera house, concert hall and playhouse, five to six million dollars each; two smaller auditoriums at three to four million. Plazas, corridors, service facilities, landscaping, 30 to 35 million.

There are 2,000 volcano craters on the Galapagos Islands, off the coast of Ecuador.

Painting Pays Golden-Ager Double Dividends at 83

BY MARIE DAERR

William B, 83, who never touched a paint brush until he was 75, now has a hobby that pays double dividends.

People pay $25 for his oil paintings. You can imagine what a thrill this gives a man in his 80s.

But he doesn't keep the money. The second beneficiary of his hobby is his church's building fund.

Paintings aren't the only output of this remarkable octogenarian. He's on the job five days a week, sometimes six, as a machinist.

"I worked 50 years for the railroad," William B, a widower, told me. "After I retired, I had a lucky break.

"My brother-in-law, who owns an incubator manufacturing firm, offered me a job. Now I'm getting social security and a salary, as well.

"I started taking painting lessons when I was 75. I had a good teacher."

William B's home is a hotel for retired people. Here he lives inexpensively, takes care of his own room. The hotel is in the downtown area of a big city, handy to buses, stores and movies.

"I brought my swivel rocker with me, so I'd feel at home," he says.

Evenings and weekends, William B dons a blue smock and sits down at his easel. He already has two painting pupils, residents of the hotel. He doesn't charge for lessons.

On the walls of his room hang many of his oils, some of them copies of Audubon prints.

"Often I walk into an art gallery, look at the expensive painting, memorize it and reproduce it," he says. "One of my most popular paintings is a head of Christ. I have sold eight of these paintings."

The hotel manager, impressed with William B's hobby, gave the octogenarian space for a one-man show in the hotel corridor outside the dining room.

"I'm one of the lucky ones," said William B. "I'm very grateful I can pass on a little of what I know to others. Maybe they can have as much fun with painting as I have had."

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Confined Production Of Swine Requires Capital, Planning

Confinement production of hogs involves a lot more than just locking them up in the old horse barn, says Roy Van Arsdall, U.S.D.A. economist at the University of Illinois.

A confinement system should be designed for labor efficiency. Van Arsdall emphasizes the importance of mechanical means of handling feed and water as well as equipment for handling manure.

For most efficient feed conversion, temperatures should be kept at a moderate level within the house, Van Arsdall said. A closed house must be properly ventilated to control moisture.

Van Arsdale figures that a good, fully equipped farrowing house costs about $300 per sow space. On the basis of about four litters a year with an average of 7½ pigs per litter, this cost amounts to about $10 per market hog produced per year.

A finishing house costs about $10 per market hog produced per year. This cost is figured by assigning a cost of $2.50 per square foot and allotting 10 square feet per hog and allowing four and a half to five months to finish a bunch of hogs.

High Capital Needs

A farmer can expect to invest about $10,000 if he produces 500 hogs per year. This figure includes the cost of self-feeders and waterers.

If the houses and equipment are bought new, the costs will be slightly more than for pasture production. However, Van Arsdall says that depreciation is greater with portable housing, and partly compensates for this difference.

A confinement system can free land for more intensive cropping. The system can reduce labor needs and make it possible to distribute labor more evenly throughout the year, Van Arsdall said.

Easier To Handle

Another advantage of this setup is that pigs are easier to handle, sort and vaccinate.

Handling manure is the main disadvantage of a confinement system, according to Van Arsdall. Also, because the hogs are unable to supplement their diet as they would on pasture, a farmer with a confinement system must thoroughly understand the nutritional requirements of hogs. And disesases can cause havoc if good sanitation practices aren't followed, Van Arsdall warned.

Van Arsdall thinks there is a definite trend toward confinement production of livestock in Illinois.

The purpose of the school lunch program as outlined by Congress in 1946 was "to safeguard the health and well being of the nation's children and to encourage the domestic consumption of nutritious agricultural commodities and other food."

BEAN PRICES MAY REACH EARLY PEAK

The run-up in soybean prices was not forecastable, but neither was it entirely unexpected. After such a boom has started, the safest course is to ride along for a time — but get off before the reaction sets in.

The foundation for the price advance was laid when soybean production failed to set a new record in either 1959 or 1960. Although the 1960 crop was only 3 per cent smaller than the record crop of 1958, it was comparatively small.

SHORT CROP? We say that the 1960 crop of beans was comparatively small because soybean production doubled in the five years ending with 1958 and set a new record every year. In such a situation the two-year stretch without a new record was abnormal. It was the first two-year period of less-than-record output since 1937.

Soybean production outran use and exports when production reached 580 million bushels in 1958. About 10 per cent of that crop was left over at the end of the marketing year.

The carry-over was cut to only 23 million bushels by last Oct. 1. This small carry-over plus the 1960 crop of 559 million bushels provided a total supply of 582 million bushels for this marketing year. This amount was figured to be about equal to needs for seed, crushing and exports.

SOYBEAN OIL VALUES ROSE. A further basis for improvement in soybean prices was provided by the recovery of oil values. Whereas soybean oil sold at near 7 cents a pound early in 1960, prices had moved up to 10 cents by December. Since a bushel of beans produces around 11 pounds of oil, the rise in oil prices added about 33 cents to the value of a bushel of soybeans.

Many reasons have been listed for the improvement in oil prices. Subsidized exports under P.L. 480 took substantial quantities of oil. This is the short year of the two-year cycle in the production of olive oil. Lard production has been cut back in recent months. Reports of crop failure in communist China also provided fuel for speculation.

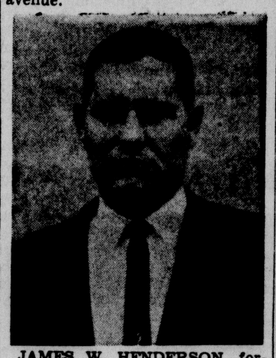

Two Promotions In Farm Bureau Insurance Office

Two personnel changes in the insurance department of the Farm Bureau have been effected. The agency manager has been appointed district manager and his place has been filled by the former general agent of Scott County.

C. W. NICHOLSON, who was agency manager here for the past four years, has begun his new duties as district sales manager. His territory embraces 14 north central Illinois counties.

During his tenure the Morgan County agency grew in all areas of insurance service. He and his family live at 160 E. Pennsylvania avenue.

JAMES W. HENDERSON, former Scott County agency manager, has taken over the Jacksonville office and now has the responsibility of the management of insurance services in both counties. He has been with Country Companies for some time, having served as special agent in Morgan County and agency manager in Saline County before taking over the office in Winchester.

Record 4-H Interest In Electricity School

There are 38 members of Morgan County 4-H clubs enrolled in the 1961 electricity school, which will hold its third class at Farm Bureau hall Wednesday evening. The school will end Feb. 8, with a Family Night when the students will demonstrate some phase of what they have learned.

This is a record number of students. Tom Glossop, Anderson, Clayton electrician, has joined the other four instructors and will assist in the instruction of the first year class.

The student roster reads:

Arcadia 4-H: Ricky McGinnis, Vernie Thomas.

Berea: Harold Hoagland, Tommy Johnson, Robert Reiser.

East Side Juniors: Richard Hembrough, Ken Western, Gary Ginder.

Franklin Straight Shooters: James Jones, James Robinson, James Shearl, Willie Rees, Jimmy Rawlings.

Waverly Hustlers: Daniel Long, Lawrence Crouse, Delbert Lael, Larkin Merriman.

Bob Hayward Jr., assistant farm adviser, announces the annual tractor maintenance and safety school will begin in February. Tractor dealers of this area will meet with 4-H leaders Monday afternoon to complete plans.

The Morgan County 4-H Federation will meet on Wednesday, Feb. 1, at 7:30 p.m. The speaker will be Spencer Lane, MacMurray College admissions director, who will discuss college entrance requirements.

Soil Types, Yields Subject Of Program

"Wednesday, Feb. 8, will be 'Charlie Gholson Day' in Morgan county," announces Farm Adviser George Trull. "Everyone who will be farming Morgan county land in 1961 should be interested in attending."

Charlie Gholson is in charge of Illinois soil experiment fields in west central Illinois and will be the main speaker on the program. Starting time is 1 p.m. at Farm Bureau hall.

The program has been planned and arrangements made by the soils and crops committee of the Morgan County Agricultural Extension Council. Robert Burrus of Arenzville is chairman.

Gholson and the farm adviser will team up in presenting information about the main soil types of Morgan county, their potential, and suggested rotations and management for each. The suggestions concerning most profitable rotations and management will be based on results on experiment fields that have the same soil types.

There will also be a discussion of weed control, particularly giant foxtail and Johnson grass.

"Morgan county does not have an up-to-date soil map of the entire county, and the soils are mapped according to groups and terms in use 30 years ago. Many farmers do not know the names of the predominant soil types on their farms. All Morgan county farmers are invited to attend 'Charlie Gholson Day,' and learn more about the land they farm," Trull says.

$2,500 In Cash, Corn By Morgan In CROP Drive

Morgan County contributed more than $2,500 in corn and cash to the 1960 Christian Rural Overseas Program, it was reported last week. Gilbert Todd of Jacksonville, treasurer of the Morgan County committee, stated that 1143 bushels of corn were donated and that cash contributions amounted to $1,551.

"The success of the CROP drive in the county this year was made possible by the good job done by solicitors in each of the townships, and by the generous contributions made by many Morgan County farmers and others," says Dr. Richard Nesmith, 1960 campaign director.

Several elevators cooperated in receiving the corn contributions. A total of 41 carloads of corn was collected and shipped by CROP in Illinois during 1960. This is a step forward from the year before, when 31 cars of corn were shipped. Top county in the state was McLean, and Ogle came in a very close second. Each county collected corn and cash valued at more than $7,000. Total Illinois contributions translated into corn values would have exceeded 200,000 bushels.

The food and money collected by CROP is made available to Church World Service and other church agencies who are helping to feed the refugees in the Congo, the Middle East, Hong Kong, and in many areas of the world.

Those who give to CROP are helping to use the abundance of America to help build friendship and understanding in areas of tension," Nesmith emphasized.

Robert Johnson To Attend U.I. Winter Course

The deadline of Jan. 27 for enrolling in the U.I. winter short course in agriculture is drawing near, warns Farm Adviser George Trull.

"Several of our young farmers inquired about the course," Trull said Friday. "But as of now only one has enrolled: Robert Johnson of Alexander. He graduated from Routt high school last year and will be financially aided by a $100 scholarship provided by the Elliott bank. Several other such scholarships are available."

Dates for the short course are Feb. 6 through March 17. The six-week course offers young farmers an opportunity to keep up to date on modern farming practices. At the core of the short course are such subjects as the management of beef cattle, dairy cattle, hogs, sheep, crops and soils.

Livestock selection is also emphasized, as are agricultural engineering courses dealing with shop work and farm equipment. Marketing and prices and farm management are two courses offered in agricultural economics.

A brand-new course covers agricultural policy and programs. It analyzes past and present federal programs affecting agriculture.

Anyone, man or woman, 18 years of age or older may attend the short course. Costs for the course average $200.

Swine Systems— Subject Of Farm Tour Feb. 15

The livestock committee of the Morgan County Extension Council has arranged a Feb. 15 tour of two hog farms in the Murrayville area.

It will begin at 12:30 p.m. on the LeRoy Jackson farm, four miles east and a half mile north of Murrayville. This farm features a large confinement set-up, with a liquid manure disposal system. Here hogs are kept from farrowing to market.

At 1:45 the visitors will inspect the Alan Heaton farm, a mile east and a mile and a half south of Murrayville. There sows farrow at six weeks interval the year around in a central house, and the pigs are grown and finished on pasture.

Afterwards the group will assemble for doughnuts and coffee at the Murrayville Legion hall, and to hear a discussion by Don Jedele, extension specialist in farm buildings, and Harry Russell, animal science department.

This Week.. at Dixon Springs

On several occasions in this column we have mentioned that grain sorghums compare favorably with corn in both grain and silage yields. Therefore, more and more work has been done with sorghums at Dixon Springs.

In 1960 George McKibben, Station agronomist, carried on an interesting cultural study involving row spacing of Texas 610 grain sorghum. George drilled the sorghum in rows of 40, 30, 20 and 10 inches with about two inches between plants in the row.

20 Inch Rows Best

Grain yields were best from the 20-inch rows, being nearly double those from the conventional 40-inch rows. Yields for the various row spacings were as follows: 40 inches, 66 bushels; 30 inches, 76 bushels; 20 inches, 126 bushels; and 10 inches, 80 bushels.

These yields were obtained without cultivation. However, 2,4-D herbicide was applied when the sorghum was about four inches tall. Conceivably, cultivation would have increased grain yields on the wider spacings. With the closer spacings, 20 and 10-inch rows, weeds were well controlled. The herbicide plus shading of the sorghum plants resulted in a nearly weed-free crop.

Silage Yields

Silage yields did not vary greatly between the 30-, 20- and 10-inch spacings, ranging from 16½ to 17½ tons an acre. The silage yield for the sorghum in 40-inch rows was 12½ tons.

More N to Close Rows

In this experiment the closer spaced rows received greater amounts of nitrogen fertilizer. The nitrogen was applied in August, and row applications were the same for all spacings: therefore, on a per-acre basis, the 20-inch rows received twice as much nitrogen. Other fertility treatments were equal on the acre basis.

Morgan Farm Bureau Helps In Livestock Marketing Survey

The directors and township chairmen of the Morgan County Farm Bureau last week completed their part in a state-wide livestock marketing survey.

The first phase of the survey, which is expected to be the basis of developing better marketing systems in Illinois, was the collection of information on "how is it done now."

The Illinois Department of Agriculture desired this information, but pleaded lack of funds to do the job. The Illinois Agricultural Association volunteered to do the work at no cost to the taxpayers.

James Swain of Sinclair, chairman of the Farm Bureau marketing committee, and John Chambers, Farm Bureau organization director, were placed in charge of gathering the data in Morgan County. They completed their part in the large task by sending reports from each township in the county to the I.A.A. office in Chicago Saturday.

The reports were collected in a way to insure true sampling. Each enumerator drove to the southwest corner of his township and took the first road east. He filled out a blank, uniform throughout the state, at the first four farms on the road that had purchased or sold livestock during 1960.

The information requested included how many hogs, cattle or sheep were purchased or sold, at what weights, where they were purchased or sold, when they were bought or sold, what the livestock man thought of the current market information he received, what influence the information had on his decisions, and what additional information, if any, he would like to have.

The 72 anonymous reports gathered in this county were dispatched Saturday to Chicago, where they will be tabulated with those of from the other 101 counties by the IBM machine in the I.A.A. office. This tabulation will be studied by marketing specialists of the Illinois Department of Agriculture, University of Illinois and Southern Illinois University in hopes of developing better markets in the state.

Junior Member Of Angus Assn.

David Strawn, 12, Jacksonville, has been granted a junior membership in the American Angus association at St. Joseph, Mo., announces Frank Richards, secretary.

His membership enables him to register his purebred Angus at regular membership rates and entitles him to the privileges of the association until he reaches the age of 21. At that time he will be eligible to convert to a lifetime membership.

David was one of 63 young people in the United States to receive junior memberships last month, Richards says.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Strawn, rural route 3. He has been a member of the North Side Ag club for three years and his club projects have been beef cattle and electricity.

Jan. 31 Deadline For S.S. Report On Farm Workers

Farm operators are reminded that the January 31 deadline for reporting their "covered" agricultural workers for social security purposes is near at hand. According to H. J. Vasconcelles, manager of the Springfield social security office of the Social Security Administration, they have until Jan. 31, 1961, to file tax returns for their employees, who in 1960 met the agricultural work test.

To be "covered" a worker must meet one of the following requirements:

1. Cash wages paid to him by the farm operator must have amounted to $150 or more during 1960. The wages do not include such items as room and board, clothing and other payments in kind.
2. He must have worked in at least 20 different days during the year, for cash wages figured on a time basis.

Vasconcelles further stated that for 1960, the social security tax is 6 per cent, with 3 per cent deducted from the employee's wages and 3 per cent to be paid by the employer. The tax return and the tax must be sent to the District Director of Internal Revenue, Springfield, Ill.

Why pay up to $30 more for a chainsaw when you get so much more "workability"

with a CLINTON SUPER CHAINSAW

Quick starting... always Easy handling... at all angles

Some chainsaws seem awkward, heavy to hold. Some are lightweight but without sufficient cutting capacity. With the Super, you get both cutting power and ease of handling. Weight is balanced in the chainsaw itself. In operation, this balance works for you—the chainsaw helps feed itself into the cut. With the Super, you get to choose a saw that's custom-suited to your needs. You can have the greater dependability of gearing or the extra speed of direct drive. Select your guide bar —Roller Tip for 20% more speed, or Stellite-Tipped for longest wear. And the low price makes it unquestionably the best chainsaw you can buy.

Games For Snowy Days

By Joseph A. Smith

Fun With Marbles

Here are some games for the person stuck indoors some snowy day. Ask your mother if you can use a silverware tray. Simply empty the tray, round up three large books (such as encyclopedias), place one on top of the other, lean the tray on end against the books so that the tray is at an angle facing you.

Now place a length of wood or a ruler a short distance in front of the tray. Step back a short distance and roll marbles up towards and over the ruler. The ruler will cause the marble to jump up into the tray (you hope!)

Now number each compartment section in the tray, and play for 100 or more points. It takes practice and skill to get the marble to always jump into the highest pointage compartment.

Knock Him Down

Here's one that's a lot harder to do than it first appears to be. Hunt around in the basement for a small piece of pressboard or plywood, draw a large figure on it, then cut the figures out.

Place a small piece of wood behind it to make it stand up a slightly backward angle. Next look around in the kitchen drawer for a length of string. Carefully sew the string onto a sponge rubber ball (etc.). Fasten the opposite end of the string using a thumb tack to the center of a doorway.

Now place the figure slightly off center of the door. Stand back a ways, let go of the ball letting it swing forward and then return.

The object is to knock the figure over on the return swing; knocking it over on the down swing doesn't count. To make it rougher, allow two points for each time successfully knocked over on the return swing, and subtract a point each time when the down swing knocks it over.

Allow each player five tries each time he is up. If it seems too easy, place a very small weight on the back of the figure so that it requires a direct center hit to knock it over!

For more such games see 150 Games to Play by Horace T. Elmo.

Rockets And Space—

Meet This Astronaut

By Walter B. Hendrickson Jr.

U.S. Air Force Captain Donald Kent Slayton was one of the seven military test pilots selected to become Project Mercury Astronauts.

Slayton was born in Sparta, Wisconsin, on March 1, 1924. He is five feet 10½ inches tall, weighs 160 pounds, and has blue eyes and brown hair.

Donald Kent Slayton

Slayton's immediate family consists of, a wife and and two year old son, his parents, and five brothers and sisters. Slayton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Slayton, a brother, Howard, and a sister, Mrs. Lyndahel Hagen, live in Sparta, Wis. Donald K. Slayton's other brother, Elwood, and two more sisters, Mrs. Milton Madsen and Mrs. Harold Schluenz, live in Madison, Wis. Donald and Marjorie Slayton and their son Kent live in Hampton, Va., near the Langely Research Center, where the astronauts do most of their work.

Donald K. Slayton went to grade and high schools in Sparta, Wis. He graduated from Sparta high school in the early summer of 1942. At the time of Slayton's graduation the United States was fighting for its life in World War II. So Slayton entered the Army Air Corps (which became the Air Force after the war) as an aviation cadet.

Wins Wings

After learning to fly war planes at Vernon, Texas, and Williams, Ariz., Slayton won his wings in April, 1943. He was then assigned to 340th Bombardment Group in which he flew 56 combat missions in B-25 medium bombers.

In mid-1944 Slayton was transferred to the Uniter States where he served as a B-25 instructor pilot at Columbia, S. C. Later assigned to a unit checking out pilots in the A-26.

Slayton was sent to Okinawa in April 1945 to join the 319th Bombardment Group (Medium.) As a member of this group he flew 7 combat missions over Japan. After World War II ended on Dec. 31, 1946, Slayton again served for about a year as a pilot instructor in B-25 bombers. Then he joined a Air National Guard Reserve unit and entered the University of Minnesota in January, 1947.

Two years later, after studying both winter and summer, Slayton was graduated from the university with a Bachelor of Science degree in Aeronautical engineering. After graduation he got a job as an aeronautical engineer with the Boeing Aircraft Co. in Seattle, Wash. He held this job until early in 1951 when he was recalled to active duty with the Air National Guard.

Korean War

At that time the United States forces were fighting in Korea as the major part of the United Nations emergency force. This force was sent to Korea to repel North Koreans that had invaded South Korea on June 25, 1950. In 1951 the United Nation's forces were being repelled from the northern boundary of Korea by the Chinese Communists, who had entered the war to aid the defeated North Korean Communists.

On his recall to service, Slayton was assigned to Minneapolis as an maintenance flight test officer of a F-51 jet fighter squadron. After completing this assignment, he spent a year and a half at 12th Air Force Headquarters as a technical inspector. He spent another year and a half as a fighter pilot and maintenance officer in Bitburg, Germany, with the 36th Fighter Day Wing.

Slayton returned to the United States in June, 1955, and entered the Air Force Flight Test Pilot School at Edwards Air Force Base, California. After completing his studies at this school in January, 1956, he has been an experimental test pilot at that base.

In this job he has flown experimental models of every jet fighter built for the Air Force. Slayton's last assignment before joining Project Mercury was as chief of Fighter Section A. He has flown a total of 3,400 hours, with 2,000 hours in a wide variety of jets.

Slayton is a holder of the Air Medal with Cluster.

Let's Go Birding—

These Songsters Like Children

By Emma Mae Leonhard

If you children could vote and were asked to cast your ballots for your favorite bird, you would probably elect the wren.

Why? It might be because of the wren's tininess or its sauciness or its nervousness. It could possibly be because of its uninhibited singing that can really be heard without too much quiet listening. Wrens may be something like healthy children.

Wrens are always with us too—singing, fussing, fidgeting, bobbing and bouncing, and peering curiously into the narrowest cracks. They may look alike too.

They are little energetic brown birds, plump and stubby; their bills are slender, and their tails are often cocked over their backs. Many people may think that all of our wrens are house wrens just they think of the neighborhood children as plain kids.

Not All Alike

However, children are really more than plain kids. Some are better singers than others; some are more friendly; some, shyer; others are bolder and always in sight.

So are the wrens: the Cactus, the Carolina, and the Winter Wrens are the finest songsters. The House Wren prefers our orchards and yards; the Carolina, tangles and bushy undergrowth; the Marsh, cattail marshes and wet grassy meadows; the Rock, dry rocky slopes and canyons; the Cactus, desert plants in arid areas; the Bewick, fence rows, thickets, and brush piles.

Our favorite wren—the Winter Wren (if it is proper to have favorites)—chooses for its haunts mossy tangles, roots along streambanks, or fallen logs of old trees. Perhaps it is our favorite because it is the hardest to find for several reasons: there are very few Winter Wrens; they visit us only in the winter season and don't sing at this time; and they hide in the roots and tangles along the most inaccessible streams.

Many a winter passes without our seeing even one Winter Wren. We feel favored if we find one for our annual bird list; if we see two at different intervals and different places, we talk about the occasion.

However, on November 11, we broke our record. Two Winter Wrens lured us by their rusty hard alarm calls of "crrrrip" (formerly unknown to us) to the underbrush and rotting logs along the Mauvaisterre at the bottom of the Boddy Hill.

One little dapper fellow broke another record for us: he perched on a branch at least six feet above the ground, sitting there for everyone to gaze at in wonder. But he didn't sing. His companion flew on down the trail and hid itself in the impenetrable underbrush.

If you should wish to see them, we regret that we cannot encourage you to try. We have attempted to show them off to others since that lucky day, and we have found only silence and emptiness there. But we know that some few children are like that: they will not show off in public.

NO OFFICE

Wyoming does not have a lieutenant governor's office. If the state's governor dies or is disabled, the secretary of state succeeds him.

True Story—

Long-Ago School Girl

By Mary Pence Claywell

Part 16: Dangers

We often hear folk of today talking of the great dangers our children face, not only on their way to and from school but in many other ways as well.

But the "Yesterdays" also had their dangers . . . as does every age. So it behooves every one of us today just as then, to adhere to every safety rule and precaution, both children and adults, if we are to save both lives and limbs and establish for ourselves more peace of mind.

Again, let us return to Hannah and the one room country school, and see just what dangers children faced and, in imagination, share the worries of parents more than a half century ago.

There were no school busses in Hannah's time, and the only rides the children got, and they were very infrequent, were when some farmer, if he weren't busy, occasionally took his own children to school in a big wagon pulled by horses. Or a homemade sled might be used when there was a big snow on, and the friend kindly picked up every neighbor's child he passed on the way . . . until the sled or wagon was running over.

But usually all the children walked the entire distance, whether it were short or long. And, in many cases, the country schools were not in the center of the district for various reasons. Some had long walks, indeed, in the round-about ways they were sometimes forced to take.

CQ Radio Hams

Mystery Of Silent Voices

By Joseph A. Smith

Part 3: How To Hear Them

Recently we spoke of the inaudible sounds that are all the time around us as we go on our way through life. We also spoke of the Short-Wave Listener who enjoys hearing these many sounds —even the many forms of activity that are going on during the night.

How do you listen in on these many forms of activity? Through a Short-Wave Receiver.

This short-wave radio should be capable of covering at least the air spectrum from the Broadcast-band up through 32 megacycles (that is from 550Kcs up through 3,200Kcs.) With this range, your receiver will cover all the following: Standard Broadcast Band, all six major Amateur Bands, ships at sea or on the lakes and rivers, airlines, U.S. and overseas short-wave broadcasting bands, etc.

If the listener is fortunate enough to be the owner of an Army surplus BC 453-B Long-Wave receiver, he likewise could receive some news broadcasts and weather forecast broadcasts even before the papers and local radio stations do. These are broadcast on frequencies immediately below those covered by your regular broadcast radio.

What's The Cost?

How much will a short-wave receiver cost you? Well, here you should consider two different all important factors; namely, how much you can afford and do you wish to build your own receiver or buy one ready-made?

One way the beginner might start out would be by buying one of the many regenerative type short-wave receivers available today in kit form. One example of such a receiver might be either the Knight-Kit "Ocean Hopper" costing around $17 or their "Space Spanner" costing around $20. Either will provide around the world reception under proper conditions if used with a good antenna and ground.

Then again, the "Junk Box" might provide the necessary parts with which you can "home-brew" your own regenerative receiver. The plans for one such receiver can be found in the A.R.R.L. Handbook which is simple enough for the newest beginner to build.

Of course, the Superhetrodyne type of receiver is much better than a simple regenerative receiver in that it is better able to sort out the many stations that at times are very closely crowded together in one band.

Today, smaller communications receivers are available in kit form too. Building them should be no chore for anyone who can read and follow instructions and pictorial diagrams exactly.

Freeman Tackles Hard Puzzle As Agriculture Hits Efficiency Peak

By OVID A. MARTIN
Associated Press Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The agriculture which came under the supervision of Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman this week is considerably different from that inherited by his predecessor, Ezra Taft Benson, eight years ago.

Perhaps the biggest difference is the size of its productive capacity. Farming has taken giant strides in recent years, increasing the volume of its output as well as its efficiency.

This expansion in productive capacity — made despite government efforts to apply the brake—has complicated the job of the secretary of agriculture and his aides. That job is to try to bring about a stability of prices, income and production.

Farm output in 1960 set a record of 20 per cent more than the output when the Eisenhower administration took over in 1953. Much of this increase was in crops, particularly grains. Ample evidence of this exists in vast storehouses of wheat, corn, sorghum grain and the like, stored under government price supports.

More On Less

Reflecting agriculture's increased rate of efficiency is the fact that during the eight years of the Eisenhower regime, crop output went up nearly 20 per cent while use of crop land went down about 6 per cent.

Use of improved varieties of crops, more and better fertilizers, more machinery and the like led to sharp increases in the number of pounds of cotton and peanuts, bushels of grains, and hundredweights of potatoes grown per acre.

Increased agricultural productivity has outstripped demand. This is reflected by the fact that when the Eisenhower administration took office, the government had $2.45 billion invested in farm surpluses compared with an investment of around $9.25 billion inherited by the Kennedy regime.

The amount of money now tied up in wheat alone far exceeds the total surplus investment at the beginning of 1953. The number of dollars tied up in corn also is in excess of total surplus investments eight years ago.

Losses Also Increase

The extent of the growth of the surplus problem can be shown by comparing government losses in carrying out farm price support programs, under which the surpluses are accumulated. Losses eight years ago were running slightly less than $70 million a year. Last year they totaled $795 million.

The change in agriculture during the eight-year period is shown by the growth in exports. In 1952, foreign shipments were valued at $3.43 billion. In 1960 they had a value of $4.5 billion.

Significant changes have occurred in agriculture's pocketbook. Despite the 20 per cent increase in the outpouring of commodities, farmers' income has gone down. In 1952, returns of operators totaled $14.4 billion. In 1960, returns were around $11.6 billion—a decline of almost 20 per cent.

Income Down, Costs Up

This downturn in income reflects two major developments—a decline in farm product prices and an increase in prices paid by farmers for goods, services, and machinery used in farm production.

Farm prices at the end of 1960 were down nearly 16 per cent from the level prevailing eight years ago. Prices paid by farmers are up nearly 4 per cent.

Another way of gauging the change in agriculture's economic position is a comparison of how prices stack up against the parity goal of federal farm-aid programs. Parity is a standard for measuring farm prices declared by Congress to be fair in relation to prices charged farmers for things they buy.

In 1952 farm prices averaged 100 per cent of parity. They averaged 80 per cent in 1960, a decline of 20 per cent.

Fewer Farmers

Agriculture has sharply changed its character in other ways, too. The farm population has declined. In 1952 there were 24,283,000 persons on farms. By 1959, this number had declined to 21,172,000.

The number of farms has gone down, too—from about 5,250,000 in 1952 to about 4,500,000 at present. The average size of farms has increased.

Farm employment has declined during the period. Workers on farms in 1952—including operators and family workers as well as hired hands—averaged 9,149,000. In 1960 this average had dropped to 7,118,000.

IRC Helps Refugees Who Can Contribute To Free Society

NEW YORK (AP)—Viktor Jaanimets felt secure, for the moment, in the New York Immigration Office. But he knew he couldn't remain there, and he had no place else to go.

The frightened Estonian seaman was convinced his worst danger was yet to come.

He had slipped away from the ship Baltika which brought Soviet Premier Khrushchev to the U. N. General Assembly meeting last fall, and he said he wouldn't feel safe until the ship left New York Harbor.

If they find me and return me aboard the Baltika, Jaanimets said, "I might be shot."

In a few moments a private car pulled up, and Jaanimets got in. He drove unnoticed to an airstrip and boarded a private plane. Where he stayed until the Baltika departed remains the secret of an organization called the International Rescue Committee.

This is a group unique among refugee organizations—unique in that, literally, rescue is its middle name.

Its founders, staff members and supporters are persons who feel there is a special place for a refugee welfare organization which combines the humanitarian business of relief with the patriotic struggle for freedom.

"Because of our limited money we can't help everybody who needs it, or even deserves it," said IRC Chairman Leo Cherne.

"Our first concern is for those who openly fight totalitarianism, and we give priority to persons who can make a maximum contribution to a free society—persons we call community leaders."

At its New York headquarters 22 staff members work daily to resettle such refugees. Their names are supplied mostly by IRC representatives in 16 key foreign cities close to the Iron Curtain.

A recent typical IRC operation involved a Czechoslovakian chemist, Jan Rocek, who leaped overboard from an East German ferry boat with his family and swam to shore near Gedser, Denmark.

IRC brought the family to the United States after arranging a job for Rocek in the Harvard University Chemistry Department.

The IRC prides itself on being sensitive to international politics and the political significance of a person's defection.

Even before the United States put dictator Rafael Trujillo on its black list, a spokesman pointed out, the IRC already had announced it would welcome refugees from the Dominican Republic.

The IRC does not slip behind barbed wire borders with cloak and dagger and dramatically snatch oppressed scientists from the clutches of the enemy.

But snatching Jews from Nazi Storm Troopers in 1933 was precisely how the IRC was born.

It began taking on its present intellectual and political characteristics in 1940 when the committee—a group of Americans anxious at that time for the welfare of prominent refugees trapped in France—sent a young man named Varian Fry to Marseille to see what could be done.

Fry's underground succeeded in smuggling out about 1,500 teachers, sculptors, artists, scientists and others, and to the present day the general aim of IRC hasn't changed.

In one recent two-year period the committee resettled 1,701 refugees and their families—each a scholar, scientist or similar.

MILITARY PAGEANT

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — The largest military tattoo pageant of all is being prepared for Vancouver's fourth International Festival next summer.

Preparations are being handled by Brigadier Alasdair Maclean, who previously has staged 20 of the displays, including the annual Edinburgh Tattoo and those in Copenhagen, Lisbon, New York and Bermuda.

Maslean says more than a thousand members of Canada's military forces will participate, plus units from other nations.

American families spent 5.4 per cent of their income after taxes for health care services and products in 1959, reports the Health Insurance Institute.

THE ECONOMIC REPORT—As one of the last acts of his administration, President Eisenhower has reported on the economic situation of the nation. Chart above shows the record for the last four years and reveals that the Gross National Product passed the half-trillion mark in 1960 for the first time in history. GNP is the total value of all goods and services produced in the country. "Final purchases" represents the sum of the nation's expenditures on goods and services. Chart shows that buying continued strong at the end of the year while GNP leveled off. Investments in business inventories declined throughout the year.

Newspaper Enterprise Survey:

U.S. Gals More Interested In Homes Than In Wardrobes

NEW YORK—(NEA)— American women proved today they have dual personalities: they are both practical and romantic.

According to a survey sponsored by Newspaper Enterprise Association, the world's largest newspaper feature service, American housewives are even more interested in their homes than in their wardrobes.

Romantic . . .

More than 7,500 women newspaper readers across the country were interviewed in the year-long study to determine what women like to read, want to read and will read in daily newspapers.

Husbands need not be elated, however, because Fashion ranked only a Kennedy-Nixon percentage point behind Home and Food in the ladies' interest. But the man who pays the bills can get some consolation from the fact there is an upswing in do-it-yourself sewing—how to make a chic little something out of an inexpensive nothing.

• • •

The most significant trend reflected in the survey was the number one position of Home. Homemaking ranked first in home interest with flower arranging, home furnishing news, decorating and use of color close seconds.

The survey was conducted through an independent research group under the direction of Jean Mooney, director of women's services for NEA, and social scientist Dr. Marguerite L. Rittenhouse. Dr. Rittenhouse supplied the technical guidance and Miss Mooney made the readership interpretations.

The lady of the house says she wants to know how to make her home attractive and easy to care for before she writes to a love-lorn column or checks up on what the Joneses are doing. In between she searches out food news, investigates new fashions, seeks information on family, beauty and health.

In local news the majority of women preferred to read about women who are active in their communities or who lead interesting lives. They are not primarily interested in people who are socially prominent.

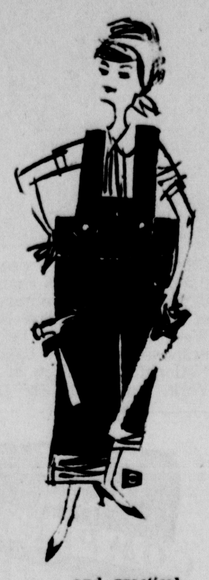

• • •

In the food department, the hostess, meal planner, and budgeteer wants to know about new products, new recipes and new menus.

Proper care of hair and skin lead the personal beauty poll, with diet and exercise strong contenders in the health category.

When she is concerned about personal problems, the housewife is most apt to be worrying about her children. Marriage, old age and employment rank further down the interest list.

Among other categories, women reported wide interests covering art, music, theater, travel, etiquette, book review, hobbies, bridge and puzzles. And quite a few other things, as every busy housewife knows.

. . . and practical

Husbands as such were not categorized in the NEA survey.

WEST POINT GETS LUTHERAN

WEST POINT, N. Y. (AP) — For the first time, a Lutheran has been named as a chaplain of the U. S. Military Academy. He is the Rev. James D. Ford, 29, an Ivanhoe, Minn., pastor named as assistant cadet chaplain, to serve under West Point Chaplain Dr. Theodore Speers, a Presbyterian.

THOMAS VIOLA has been added to the FBI's list of "Ten Most Wanted Criminals." Viola, 48, escaped from Ohio State Penitentiary where he was serving a life sentence for murder. He stands 5'8", weighs 168 pounds, has brown hair and eyes. CAUTION: Viola should be considered armed and very dangerous. Any person having information concerning this fugitive should immediately contact the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

FAMILY TREND

THE FRACTIONAL PEOPLE—Neither the fractional person nor the "average" American family exists, but both serve to make graphic the fact that the downward trend in size of the American family has been reversed, as shown in Newschart, above. The 1960 figure is based on 45.1 million families. All data from the Census Bureau.

One of the unfortunate features of standard American bidding practices is the ring-around-a-rosy feature of certain bidding sequences. Each partner bids merrily along in minimums but since each bid is a force neither can stop and as the old song goes, "The bidding goes round and round —oh, oh, oh, oh, and we go down three."

In Jacoby-Smith this does not happen. In particular, if responder has a good hand it is his duty to show it by making a strong bid at his first or second turn.

Thus, South's bid of two diamonds is not a strong bid and is decidedly not a force. With a strong two suit hand he would have jumped to three diamonds.

Since the two diamonds bid is not strong, North is delighted to pass. Under standard practice he would have to bid again and would be too high.

Even two diamonds is a tough contract after West opens a low diamond and all dummy's diamonds get disposed of immediately.

South's winning play after he takes the third diamond is to lead a club. West will probably put up the queen. It is his best defense. Now South takes dummy's ace and leads the jack. East will take the king and return a heart. South will still need the spade finesse to make his contract, but is there for him.

Q—The bidding has been:

You, South, hold:
♠ A J 8 7 6 ♥ A 6 5 4 ♦ K Q J 10 ♣ 9 0
What do you do?

A—Your partner's three club rebid obviously indicates additional values. Still, you only have 15 high card points and a jump to four hearts should be enough.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Your partner bids four no-trump. What do you do now?

HOLLYWOOD SHORTS
By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A decade of serious illness has not hurt Clara Bow's beauty, says Richard Arlen, her old costar in "Wings."

Each Christmas, all of Clara's old friends—and some new stars who weren't born when she was the "It" girl of the Roaring Twenties—get touching handwritten notes from her. But none, except Arlen and her family, ever see her.

"I've visited her," says Arlen. "She still looks as beautiful as ever. We talk of the old days, just like it was still 1927. She's as sharp as she ever was. And still has that great sense of humor. She knows everything that is going on in the business."

Clara, now 52, has been confined to a rest home in nearby Culver City since the early Fifties. She is under constant medical care for a nervous condition.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—One of the sleepers of the year is an English movie about a small Catholic boy and his little Jewish girl friend.

The movie "Hand in Hand" punches across a lesson in tolerance, without preaching.

Producer is Helen Winston, a onetime Hollywood actress, who acquired the property some years ago.

"I couldn't get anyone in Hollywood interested in the script," she said. "Every studio in town told me that there was no market in a story in which children would star."

Miss Winston took the property to England.

"I didn't know a soul in London but one day I looked up British studios in the phone book. The British are so polite. The first one I called invited me in for an appointment."

The picture was made and now Columbia Pictures here has bought the U.S. distribution rights.

SHUNS STAR BILLING

NEW YORK (AP) — Donald Davis is a cautious actor.

Cast for the leading role in the upcoming Broadway play, "Catstick," Davis was offered star billing by producer-director Elaine Perry. He said he would accept the distinction only if the reviews warrant.

"Catstick" is the third New York appearance for Davis. The Canadian-born actor previously performed in "Tamburlaine the Great" and "Krapp's Last Tape."

Miss Markham was the daughter of William B. and Harriet Williams Markham. She had been in failing health the past four years; she was preceded in death by one sister, Miss Frances Markham in 1913.

The following brother and sisters survive: T. U. Markham of Chapin, Mrs. Emma Anderson of Chapin, and Mrs. Fred Schultis of Sarasota, Fla. Also surviving are two nephews, Lloyd Anderson of Chapin and Verne Anderson of Jacksonville; and one niece, Mrs. Clyde Fitch of Jacksonville.

Miss Markham was a lifelong member of the Chapin Christian church, and the Gleaner Class of the church.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Monday at the Williamson Funeral Home with the Rev. Mrs. Neva Morris of Chapin officiating. Burial will be in the family lot in the Chapin cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home at any time. The family requests that the Chapin Christian church organ fund be considered for any memorials.

Safety Is Becoming Part Of Schooling

SCIENCE teacher gives laboratory safety instruction

By JERRY BENNETT
Written For NEA

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—If you want expert advice on how to avoid the hazards of life, ask a school kid. Chances are he can give you tips on how to survive everything from expressway traffic to the hydrogen bomb.

His knowledge stems from a new emphasis on safety education in public schools. Officials of the National Education Association explain that recent technological and social changes are responsible.

The interest in science courses is exposing more youngsters than ever before to dangerous chemicals. Junior rocket clubs, with all their potential hazards, are becoming popular among a growing number of youngsters.

Also more high school students are driving automobiles and riding bicycles to school. The growing popularity of water sports plus the use of new, more powerful shop machinery create a safety responsibility including almost the entire faculty.

• • •

Stanley A. Abercrombie, assistant executive secretary of the association's safety commission, explains:

"Teachers have to realize that young people are forward looking and adventurous, and that we cannot succeed in teaching by banning potentially dangerous school activities from which students can gain valuable knowledge."

Teachers have found that little good can be achieved from trying to scare a youngster into being safe or forcing him to memorize safety rules. Abercrombie explains:

"A young person must fully understand why something is dangerous in order to appreciate the importance of handling it safely. He should also be shown that the safe way is also the most efficient and the most fun."

One of the most effective methods used to make students enjoy being safety conscious is encouraging them to run their own safety programs.

An example is the National Student Traffic Safety Program which is operated by the safety commission and financed by the Firestone Rubber Co. Students in about 800 schools select traffic projects and work on them throughout the school year. Projects range from conducting safe driving publicity campaigns to locating community traffic hazards.

• • •

Each summer representatives of participating schools hold a national safety conference. Plaques and certificates of merit are awarded to schools with the most successful campaigns.

In such academic courses as chemistry and physics, teachers explain hazards of natural elements such as fire and electricity. The study of accident causes and prevention has become part of social science courses.

Some schools teach students what to do in case of a nuclear attack. In most cases such instruction has been given by local Civil Defense officials.

Next year, however, the subject may be taught by faculty members. The U.S. Office of Education is preparing a special course on nuclear survival for high schools.

'JULIUS CASTRO'

NEW YORK (AP) — Present-day Cuba is the locale used by Will Fowler for a new version of Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar."

The script is under consideration for Broadway production. It was suggested by a friend who wrote down "Julius Castro" as the title, then asked Fowler how long he would take to write the drama.

Fowler, a screen writer and son of late author Gene Fowler, finished the job in six weeks.

Changing Cuba Turns From Sweet To Sour

By Robert Berrellez

HAVANA (AP)—The Cuban government's propaganda machine has intensified a campaign to mould a new generation of Cubans who'll hate Americans, be anti-church and preach Marxist ideology.

To Western observers, this is the apparent objective of Fidel Castro's, revolutionary hucksters, possibly the best organized in the history of Latin America.

The work of the apparatus has been officially designated as "revolutionary indoctrination. It feeds on hatred, particularly of anything American, fanned by an ultra-nationalism that carries anti-clerical and Marxist overtones.

The campaign is virtually without opposition in Cuba. It is being exported to other Latin-American countries by various methods, including diplomatic pouch.

In Cuba, it reaches every level of society through television, radio, magazines, newspapers and squads of trained teachers who range the land from city classrooms to the remotest rural villages and from military barracks to labor halls.

Arrayed against this campaign are the occasional publications by the Roman Catholic Church and the infrequent leaflets put out by scattered anti-Castro clandestine groups. Broadcasts by Castro's enemies from abroad have a limited audience. Former Havana newspapers and magazines being published in the United States by Cuban exiles are a rarity even in clandestine circles.

One of the best kept secrets in Cuba is who devised and who heads the indoctrination program.

"It is difficult to believe a Cuban or any Latin American could have realized on his own and in this hemisphere alone such a level of malevolence," one observer said.

There is no doubting the shrewdness of the campaign. The explosive anti-U. S. theme is so diffused as partially to obscure the play on Marxism. A group of reporters who visited the Soviet Union has been extolling the virtues of the socialist state in daily newspaper reports. Groups calling themselves "revolutionary Catholics" have burst into churches in attempts to halt the reading of anti-Communist pastorals and sermons. Outbursts in print against the "foreign Falangist" clergy are frequent.

At its most rudimentary level, the indoctrination process has given a twist to the alphabet as taught to children and to adults learning to read and write. It contains such adaptions as: "A" is for anti-communism, the false shield of the imperialists; "B" is for Batistianos, the criminal followers of the deposed dictator; "C" is for the counter-revolutionaries who are trying to take everything from you; "D" is for the defense of the country against all aggressors; "E" is for the example the Cuban revolution is giving the exploited people of America; "F" is for Fidel who gives you everything.

The following story, told by responsible parents of some of the children involved illustrates another part of the process.

In a Havana classroom recently, the teacher asked her young brood to explain who God was.

After a few minutes of hearing out her charges, the teacher interrupted gently to say there was really no God. She asked them to put their heads on their arms on their desks and to ask God for ice cream. After a moment she asked them to look up.

"You can see there is no ice cream," she said. "Now," she continued, "put your heads down again and ask Fidel for ice cream."

While the children rested their heads again, an assistant put a tray of ice cream cups on her desk. When her charges looked up, she pointed to the tray and said: "You see the difference. You know Fidel gives you everything."

This probably would not happen in Cuba's private schools, operated mostly by Catholic and Protestant organizations. But there is every indication the days of these institutions are numbered by lack of revenue. The bulk of the financial support for these schools came from the men of wealth, whose ranks have been thinned out by drastic government edict.

Fear of state indoctrination is not confined to the upper and middle classes. At the lowest strata, alarm was so intense recently over rumors the government planned to take children away from their parents and place them in state schools, that Castro was forced to deny in a nationwide TV appearance that such a step was contemplated.

But there is still suspicion. Inquiry revealed the rumors were based on questionnaires put out by the Ministry of Education for the parents of all children registering in public schools.

As this was written there were no signs of the new textbooks being prepared for the new school term. There is keen interest in them among those who anticipate an all-out drive in the classrooms during 1961—which has been officially designated as "Year of Education"—to put over the revolutionary message.

School sources report that almost all of the old textbooks have been scrapped and that instruction in some courses, especially history, is being done from notes compiled by authorized "revolutionary" faculty leaders.

TIME FOR VIOLENCE

XXXVI

At the LJ that afternoon, Stella's body was laid out in the front room, and people sat around in the semidarkness and talked in low tones. Ike Logan and Hepzibah were there with Ike's many children, all gotten up in pathetic Sunday clothes. Ike's face was skinned up and bruised, and he looked as if he had been run through a meat grinder, but he cornered Goodnight's foreman and borrowed tobacco while Hepzibah sat quietly in a corner.

Bart saw Hector Johnson leave the front room and got up to meet him outside. "Thanks," he said, "for helping."

"I never even fired," said Hector.

"The most dangerous gun," said Bart, "is one that has not been fired."

Hector said, "I know you're wonderin' what happened this morning, Mr. Wagner."

"I certainly am," said Bart.

"Mr. Harding sent me after Stella. I followed her to the Half Moon ranch. When I got there, a fight was going on inside. Murphy had come to force his attentions on Hepzibah, and old man Logan got his back up and started fightin' Murphy. Murphy was already crazy, and he begun to cut the old man down piece by piece. Hepzibah got the kids outside, and come back to help her pa. About that time Stella came and saw what had happened, and started fightin' Murphy, too. Jealous, I reckon. Murphy shot her just as I got to the door. She fell against me, and Murphy turned tail and ran."

"It must have been a blow to you," said Bart.

Hector looked up. "I guess not too much. I was wrought up, and when I got to Clarendon, all I wanted to do was settle things with Murphy."

Bart said, puzzled, "You wanted to marry Stella, didn't you?"

Hector looked at him. "I give that up several days ago. I wasn't wrought up for him killing Stella. She had it coming. But over Hepzibah, and what he was doing to the old man, cutting him to pieces.

"Is Hepzibah all right now?"

"She's been through so much in her life, she bounces right back. I'm going to court her as soon as this is over."

Bart shook hands. "You're using good judgment."

• • •

It was midafternoon when Bart reached the JA.

Goodnight shook hands with him. "Some of the nicest gunwork I ever saw. You did a great thing for the Panhandle today, Bart."

Bart shrugged.

Goodnight looked at him. "I'd like to know something. Stella Harding was telling it around that you had arranged to leave Clarendon with her, after the fight, for Kansas City. Anything to it?"

Bart looked up, thoughtful. "There was considerable to it. I was crazy about Stella, but—"

"I know what you mean. I know all about Stella."

"I saw she was going to cause her father nothing but grief, and I thought as long as she wanted to go, I could do him a good turn at the same time."

Bart rode across country until he saw the cottonwood, and heard carpenter work somewhere ahead. He thought at first that Goodnight had a crew rebuilding the shed, but there was no activity back there. He rode to the cottonwood and took off the chickens and set down the box. He unsaddled the black and turned it loose. Then two riders came over the hill—Arrington and Judge Willis. Bart waited.

Judge Willis said, "Charlie sent me over here. Said you wanted to see me."

"I never saw Charlie wrong," said Arrington.

"Captain," said Bart, "how do I stand with you?"

Arrington shrugged. "What can I do? No complaining witnesses—not even for Gentry."

The carpentry sounds continued. He said, "I'll see if Catherine is of the same mind."

He went around to the back. Catherine was on a chair, sawing out the door frame at the top.

"What are you doing?" he demanded.

She blushed a deep red. "I—I thought—you might be — oh, Bart!"

She fell from the chair into his arms. "You—you're staying!" she said, and began to cry again.

• • •

He heard Willis' voice. "It looks as if you two are getting practiced up for after the ceremony. If you can compose yourselves. I'll say the words."

Willis went through the words, and pronounced them man and wife.

Willis looked at them gravely. "There's a time for fighting," he said, "and a time for loving. There's also a time for riding on."

They rode over the hill, but Bart and Catherine were not watching. They were in each other's arms.

In Over 50 Nations Of World People Pray For Church Unity

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

Voices of many Protestant, Roman Catholic and Orthodox Christians are joined in a chorus of mutual yearning.

They pray for unity.

It is a chorus of different parts, of different words, and accents, of different visions of the way to the goal, but there is a basic note of harmony and a common longing.

"That all," as Jesus said, "may be one."

In the United States and in more than 50 countries around the world, members of the various denominations began on Wednesday the eight-day period of prayer for unity. They will continue it daily until next Wednesday.

Objective of the prayers, as mutually set by the World Council of Churches, including most major Protestant and Orthodox churches, and by the Roman Catholic Association of Christian Unity in Lyons, France, is: "That the unity of all Christians may be accomplished, according to the will of Christ, in His way and His time."

While this broad, multilateral purpose is used by Protestant and Orthodox groups in this country and abroad, and by Catholics in Europe and other overseas areas, an American Catholic observance sets a modified aim: "That the obstacles which block the effective renewal of Christian unity may be removed by the truth and love of Christ."

As planned by the Graymoor Franciscan Friars of Garrison, N.Y., the "unity octave" also calls for prayers for "the union of all Christians in the one true faith and in the church" by reconciliation of non-Catholics with Rome.

It was not until the French group, led by the late Abbot Paul Couturier, a Roman Catholic priest widely beloved as the "apostle of unity," started the broader approach to the observance that Protestant-Orthodox groups in 1940 began taking part.

The plan has now grown to a global, interfaith plea to God.

"In the self-satisfaction of our church activities, in our insensitiveness to the needs of the world for which Christ died, have mercy upon us," millions are praying. "Oh God, regard not our sin but the faith of Thy church and grant to it such peace and unity as is in accordance with Thy will."

Trojans Hold Tigers To Seven Points In 1st Half For 62-25 Win

By STAN SPOTTS

The Triopia Trojans breezed to their 11th win in 13 starts Friday night in an easy PMSC Conference game with Illinois School for Deaf on the west-end boards, 62-25. The Trojans hit at a torrid 53 per cent clip for the outing, sinking 24 of 45 attempts.

The cold Tigers, held in check the first quarter via a full court press, were never in contention for the win after Wendell Harbin put Triopia out in front to stay 54 seconds after the opening tip. ISD hit only two field goals in the initial period while Triopia hit four of 15 and added ten charity tosses to hold a commanding 18-4 bulge after eight minutes of play.

The Trojans dropped off their press in the second canto and concentrated on their offensive game which produced amazing results. Before the smoke had cleared to start the intermission, Triopia had connected on 10 of 15 shots to command a 35-5 point spread with 1:33 remaining. The losers failed to pick up a field goal in the quarter and were left trailing in the dust at halftime, 39-7.

Triopia averaged 46 per cent in the first half, connecting on 14 of 30 shots.

The winners maintained their shooting form at the start of the third canto and hit their first four shots to garner a 48-8 spread. This marked the entrance of Triopia reserves with 6:04 left. ISD had scored its last field goal of the first half with 2:31 remaining in the first quarter. After going eight full minutes without a tally the second quarter the Tigers finally broke the ice with 5:24 remaining in the 3rd stanza on a long one-handed push by Earl Claussen. The total time which elapsed before ISD tallied from the field amounted to 13 minutes and one second. Triopia showed 20 field goals in 35 shots after 24 minutes of play.

With 4:45 remaining in the final quarter, Triopia's replacements had built up a 58-18 margin and before the regulars came back on the scene with 2:17 left the subs had hit five out of eight attempts.

Kent Hansmeier and Wendell Harbin were in the double figures for Coach Leighton Peterson's winners with 17 and 15 points, respectively. The PMSC triumph was Triopia's fifth against a lone setback.

Bobby Poncar's seven points and Earl Claussen's six points were high for the Tigers, who now enter the PMSC tournament next week with a mark of no wins against 11 defeats.

Other coaches listed for the annual clinic are Rip Engle of Penn State, Darrell Royal of Texas, Pete Elliott of Illinois, Jack Curtice of Stanford and Ray Graves of Florida.

NC FOUND A KICKER

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP) — After its first seven touchdowns in 1960, North Carolina failed to get the extra point. Then fullback Bob Elliott took over and booted nine extra points in NC's final five games.

JHS Grapplers Down Quincy

Coach Tom Carmody's Jacksonville High School wrestlers picked up their sixth win in seven encounters as they downed the visiting Quincy Blue Devils, 25-17. The Crimson grapplers received victories from Hunt, Tiburn, Gotschall, Watkins, Mulch, Ferry and Willner to nip Quincy. Mulch and Ferry won their weight class on pins with the rest coming on point decisions. The meet was not actually as close as the final score indicated. The Crimsons were leading 22-6 going into the final match, but Blue Devil Heavyweight Happ, decisioned Bryant, 11-3, for the final margin.

WINCHESTER VICTORY BAND-WAGON KEEPS ROLLING

Griggsville Becomes Wildcats' 16th Victim In Close 79-72 Finish

WINCHESTER — The Wildcats presented Winchester High School and Coach Jack Renfro their third straight Invitational Tournament crown here Friday night by defeating Griggsville in a thriller, 79-72, in the finals of this 39th annual classic.

Center John Schofield had an important hand in Winchester's 16th straight victory with 20 points in the second half. Although no individual can be singled out as a hero, Schofield definitely comes the closest to fitting the description. The 6-3 center led a Winchester comeback in the final stanza with 11 points. Bill Robinson, Bill Brockhouse and Dewey Savage also contributed plenty in the final outcome with 16, 10 and 10 points respectively.

Winchester started out with a furious attack and looked as though it might turn the game into a near-rout with a 10-point advantage after eight minutes of play, 23-13.

However, Coach Charlie Pritchett's Tornadoes caught fire in the second quarter for 24 points to Winchester's 12 to whittle their way into a 37-35 margin at intermission.

Both teams then went at it fast and furious with a shooting barrage in the third canto that would put a fourth of July fireworks to shame. Even though they outscored the Tornadoes, 20-19, the Wildcats found themselves on the short end of the count at the close of the third chapter, 56-55.

Winchester overcame the slim deficit in the final go-around and led the rest of the way although Griggsville stayed in contention until the closing moments. After the losers got within three points, Winchester rose to the occasion and moved out by five and then salted the game away on an easy bucket by Schofield.

The Wildcats hit 55 per cent for the game and Griggsville hit on half of its shots for a real good showing.

Ronnie Goacher, who hit 11 of 11 free throws Thursday night, sank 11 of 12 in the finals and wound up with 23 for the Tornadoes. Corky Shelton, who collected 15 in the first half, finished with 18, the same number as Bruce Baker. The loss was Griggsville's 6th in 16 outings.

Third-seeded Greenfield won consolation honors from second seeded Bluffs on a 20-footer by Wilbert Wellhausen with four seconds remaining, 57-56. The Bluejays led most of the way but ran into trouble when they lost Gregory and Cox on fouls. Coach Ken Azbell's Tigers then went to work to deal Bluffs its third loss in 15 starts. Burl Fargo captured game scoring laurels for the losers with 23 tallies.

Eisenhower Collects Only Two Points In Final Quarter, 52-45

by Jack Fairfield

DECATUR—The Jacksonville High School Crimsons capitalized on the inability of Eisenhower of Decatur to hit free throws and their sudden absence of scoring of any type in the final period to down Coach Joe Russell's Panthers, 52-45. The Crimsons were outscored on field goals, 21-17, but made 18 charity tosses to the losers' 3, for their fourth win of the season.

The two clubs played on an even basis throughout most of the first three quarters with neither team leading by more than six points. The Crimsons took the early lead and built up a six point margin, 18-12 when Ken Norton scored on a three point play with about two minutes left in the first period. McCrary stuffed a rebound back through the hoop with only seconds remaining to pull the Panthers to within four, 18-14, at the eight minute mark. The Crimsons had their best quarter in this initial frame as they hit on 7 of 12 field goal attempts and Yates and Norton controlled both boards.

Coach John Chapman's quintet went ice cold in the second stanza, and connected on only three of sixteen shots but Eisenhower's strange void at the free throw stripe kept them close to the Panthers and the Crimsons trailed by only two at halftime, 29-27. The quarter was marred by ragged play on both sides. The two squads were guilty of numerous bad passes and traveling violations. Eisenhower did manage to connect on 14 of 31 attempts in the first half for a fine 45% but made only one charity toss.

Both the Jacks and the Panthers began the third period as they had finished the second, and Bill Sims hit on a free throw with four minutes left to knot the score at 33-33. Sims and McCrary each added two quick buckets and then everyone chipped in as Sweeney, Norton and Sims combined for the Crimsons and Taylor, Cook and McCrary did the Panthers' scoring to run the score to 43-41, Eisenhower, at the taree quarter mark.

Kenney Norton opened the final stanza with two free throws to tie the count at 43 all and the Crimsons were never headed. At this point the Soybean-capital shooters had outscored the Crimsons by 14 points from the field, but could show only one charity toss to the Jacks' 15. Norton went on another short spree as he added two more free throws and a field goal to boost the Jacksonville margin to four, 47-43, with about five minutes left to play in the game.

Terry Jones finally broke the ice for the Panthers with a charity toss with 4:20 to go but Chip Baldwin popped in his first basket since the period and the Crimsons were up by five. With a little over two minutes left, Chapman's crew began to play keep away and it worked to perfection. Ken Norton scored the final field goal with a little less than a minute to go, and Bob Meyers collected the Panthers' second point of the quarter with 15 seconds remaining in the contest. Bill Sims was fouled at the buzzer and added one point to the Jacksonville winning margin.

The Crimsons made 17 of 52 attempts from the floor for a creditable 36% while Eisenhower's lack of a field goal in the final quarter lowered their average somewhat. The Panthers still got 21 field goals, seven in each of the first three quarters, in 59 attempts for 35%.

The Jacksonville High frosh-soph lost the preliminary game on their lack of free throw shooting, as they made only 5 of 15 attempts and were defeated, 48-47.

Downstate Prep Notes

By JOHN CAMPBELL

Coach Earl Lee's Cahokia team beat Clinton's Maroons in the Shelbyville tourney and it marked the first loss for Coach Elmer Hunter's five this season. Charley Webb is the standout performer for Cahokia, winner of only three games this season. Lee moved to Cahokia after guiding Herrin to the 1957 State championship.

Last year Lee Witt guided Carthage high to an outstanding season and this year his fine East Aurora Tomcats beat East Rockford in the upset of the year in Northern Illinois prep circles. Jim Kreitz returned to the lineup in time to spark the East Aurora five in the upset as he had missed six games with an injury.

Crane Tech beat defending champion of the State tourney, Marshall high, 36-35 at DePaul alumni gymnasium. Crane scored in the last 15 seconds as forward Robert Dillard sank the decisive basket. Crane Tech is 13-2 for the season and plays at Canton Feb. 4. Crane played at Alleman (Rock Island) this season.

Coach Don Stanton's Pinckneyville Panthers shot a remarkable .540 from the field in beating Taylorville 85-48 in the Salem tourney. Hillsboro lost to Salem 62-61 in the other game at Salem's invitational meet as Dave Threlkeld made good a shot from underneath with 15 seconds to play.

Coach Dick Stearns of Aledo high attended the Lewistown high athletic banquet Saturday night and he told the fans and players to retain their enthusiasm. "You can't win those close ones without it," he declared. "Make your high school years the best possible," he advised the players, "so you will have pleasant memories." Athletic director Jim Groutage of Lewistown introduced Stearns and he told how Dick Stearns became the only coach ever penalized 15 yards for picking up his wrist watch. Storming onto the field in an out-of-town game, Stearns was ordered back to the sidelines and his team was penalized 15 yards. He saw his watch had fallen off, went back on the field to get it, and the official stepped off another 15 yards, according to Groutage.

Galesburg's Silver Streaks get little relief this weekend as they head into another week of tough competition facing 14th ranked Thornton (Harvey) and the always rugged Canton Little Giants. Friday night the Streaks travel to Canton to play in the Alice Ingersoll gym. Saturday night the Streaks will host Thornton which is rated number one in the greater Chicago area. Larry Hendricks and Lincoln Nixon are the forwards, Bob Coe at center and Gary Bruington and Ed White will be at the guard positions for the Galesburg club of Coach John Thiel.

Peoria Manual put a 16 game record conference winning streak on the line Firday night in playing at Woodruff. Manual plays at Richwoods Saturday night in another conference game. Eddie Jackson, 6-5 forward for the Rams, will be 19 on March 15 instead of March 14 after officials checked his birth certificate. He will be eligible to play in the super-sectional on the 14th of March if Manual advances through the Peoria Woodruff sectional at the Bradley field house. Jackson leads the all-games scorers with a 20.8 average and Ron Dwyer of Spalding is second with a 19.2 mark. Other conference leaders include John Craley of Manual, Larry Widdows of East Peoria, Bill Banta of Central and Dave Shute of East Peoria.

Southern Loop In Favor Of No Spring Football

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—The Southern Conference's commissioner and one of its former presidents took a stand Friday against a suggestion for abolition of spring football practice of shortening the basketball season.

Both said they saw no evils in the present setup.

The suggestion came Thursday from Ray O. Duncan, conference president and chairman of the athletic council at West Virginia University.

Duncan said a de-emphasis of sports might be in the best interests of education.

If the National Collegiate Athletic Association "really wanted to make one needed change," Duncan said, "it would be to abolish spring football practice."

He also favored steps to "shorten the basketball season."

Conference Commissioner Lloyd P. Jordan said Friday, however, "spring practice is essential to the athletes. It's the one time when there is absolutely no pressure on the boy."

And Dr. Ralph C. McDanel, former conference president and faculty chairman of athletics at the University of Richmond, said that under prevailing NCAA regulations neither the spring practice situation nor the basketball program is "being overemphasized."

New Scoring Leader Pops Up

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A new leader and a new contender for the NCAA small college basketball scoring title turned up this week.

John Bradley of Lawrence Tech just matched his 33-point scoring average in his one game of the week and moved to the top of the NCAA college division scoring tabulation released Friday. Gene Velloff of Doane (Neb.) slid down to fourth place among the leaders when he scored only 70 points in three games.

The NCAA Service Bureau rtatistics for small colleges include games through last Saturday, Jan. 14.

The new contender is Warren Spragging of Virginia Union, who brought his average up to 30.3 points after 12 games. He's he fifth scorer hitting at better than a 30-point clip. This is the first time since 1955 that so many college division players have reached that figure at midseason.

Behind Bradley at 33.0 comes Lebron Bell of Bryan (Tenn.), the early season leader, at 32.2; Lindberg Moody of South Carolina State, 31.8; Velloff 30.5 and Spraggins 30.3.

Virginia Union also has the leading rebounder, defending champion Jackie Jackson, whose 23.9 average recoveries per game put him just ahead of Zelmo Beaty of Prairie View, 23.3, and Bob Brandes of Upsala, 23.1. Virginia Union tops the team list in field goal percentages with a .519 mark.

The two individual accuracy leaders are teammates at Carthage (Ill.). Pas DesJardin is best in field goals with a .655 percentage and Gary Meneley in free throws with .939.

NO MORE ELEPHANTS

KANSAS CITY (AP)—That rampant elephant clutching a baseball bat is coming off the uniform of the Kansas City Athletics. Some local Democratic politicians including members of the City Council had made semi-serious complaints in the past about the elephant.

Charles O. Finley, the new owner, and his top executives did not say whether the change in administration in Washington or the objections had anything to do with the decision.

Another major change will identify the club more with its hometown, the word "Athletics" giving way to "Kansas City" on the shirt of the road suits.

SUPEVISOR RESIGNS

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Commissioner Joe Foss of the American Football League announced Friday the resignation of Bob Austin of East Moline, Ill., as supervisor of officials.

The resignation followed an adjustment of policy at the recent AFL annual meeting when it was decided that headquarters personnel should work directly from the league office or from the radius of a city in which a league franchise is located.

PAINFUL PUTT — Bob Goalby isn't suffering from colic. He's just missed a putt in the final round of Los Angeles Open. The Crystal River, Fla., pro won with 275.

Snow Storm In East Cancels Sports Schedules

By THE ASSOCIATION PRESS

The snow storm blanketing much of the Eastern Seaboard Friday shut down the Charles Town race track, caused cancellation of hockey and basketball games and even forced postponement of a ski festival

The weekend sports program was curtailed by snow which ranged from seven to 12 inches, severe cold and hazardous traveling conditions.

Many of the basketball and ice hockey games in the area were either canceled or postponed.

The Celtics' Friday night game with Syracuse at Boston in the National Basketball Association was postponed. Also postponed was the Eastern League professional game at Baltimore between the Bullets and Williamsport, Pa.

College basketball cancellations included Villanova vs. Duquesne at Pittsburgh.

The Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League could not get train or airplane transportation to Toronto for the game with the Maple Leafs Saturday night. So the team took off by bus with hopes of reaching the Canadian city by noon Saturday.

Freezing conditions even canceled the formal opening of the new Mt. Grace State Park ski area in Warwick, Mass.

U.S. DRIVER WINS

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)—Leroy Warriner of Indianapolis, won the 50-lap Australia Derby for midget cars at Rowley Park tonight.

He equalled the record of 14 minutes, 25 3-5 seconds held by Bob Tattersall of Streator, Ill. Tattersall spun off the track with nine laps to go.

Warriner also led all the way to win a six-lap scratch race.

2ND ONLY TO 500

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—The U. S. Auto Club Friday announced sanctioning of a 250-mile big car race to be run over the new Atlanta International Speedway July 16.

With a $30,000 purse guaranteed by Nelson Weaver, track president, the race will be second only to the Indianapolis 500-mile race in length and prize money.

Hewitt was called before the tournament committee after beating John Fraser, brother of Neale Fraser, 6-1, 7-5, 6-1. He was warned that continuance of such bad court behavior would bring drastic action from the committee.

Jim Ferrier, 1947 PGA champion and 1960 runnerup, was born in Sydney, Australia.

Peter Hay, Famed Pro Of Crosby Meet, Ailing

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)— The stout Scottish brogue of Peter Hay is missing from the Crosby Golf Tournament this year.

It is doubtful whether the venerable golf professional, who has run golf tournaments at Pebble Beach for more than 40 years, will ever be able to do so again.

The old Scot, whose many friends often refer to him as Mr. Golf, is 76 and for the past year has been in failing health.

Peter has started all of the Crosby classics played here in former years. This time, while recuperating from a serious operation, he couldn't make it.

The famed pro is perhaps best remembered by the countless thousands who have been spectators at Peninsula tournaments for his firm command of excited crowds.

His shout of "stand there" has halted many an impetuous fan in his tracks, thereby avoiding distraction of a player while shooting.

After learning golf's fundamentals in his native Scotland, Peter came to the United States and found his way to the Monterey Peninsula. He became an assistant at Pebble Beach in 1916.

Two years later he became head professional at this world-renowned seaside course.

Since then he has directed all of its many tournaments, large and small, up to this year's 20th annual Crosby.

Peter made a sentimental journey back to his native Glasgow after the California State Amateur Tournament last fall. He returned from Scotland a sick and failing man.

He came home just before Christmas and spent the holidays in a hospital, where he underwent a major operation. Last week he was able to return to his Monterey home but still is confined to his bed.

Bing Crosby and a host of other longtime friends have visited the old Scot during his illness and wished him a prompt return to Pebble Beach.

Mason County Tourney Favorite Is Forman Five

HAVANA — The annual Mason County basketball championship tournament will begin a week-long session here starting Monday with Forman of Manito favored to take top honors. Coach Jack Hills' Havana Ducks are seeded second.

Mason City, Easton, Balyki and San Jose were rated 3rd, 4th, 5th and 6th respectively. Mason City's Huskies are the defending champions.

Havana is the favorite to win freshmen-sophomore honors with Balyki second. The frosh-soph part of the annual affair will take place each evening prior to the varsity games. Two games will be held each night, Monday through Friday, starting at 6:30 and 8:00 p.m. The varsity championship will be decided Saturday night in the only game scheduled beginning at 8:00 p.m.

The freshmen-sophomore lineup shows Easton playing Forman Monday night, Mason City vs San Jose Tuesday night, Havana meeting winner game 1 Wednesday; Balyki facing winner game 2 Thursday, and the winners from Wednesday and Thursday will play for the championship at 6:30 p.m. Friday.

Check basketball menu for varsity pairings.

WELL-BRED POINTERS

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Father-son pointers owned by Jim Ayers, a Chattanooga automobile dealer, have twice retired the rotating trophy awarded annually to the best shooting dog in the Chattanooga field trials.

The father, Cole's Laderick, won the trophy three times in a row to retire the first trophy, awarded by the Chattanooga Times. Cole's Laderick then won it two more years, and the son, Ayers' Laderick, won it the third year to give Ayers permanent possession of the second trophy.

ADVERTISE—IT PAYS

ALL HANDS—University of California's Camden Wall, left, possibly thinks he has the ball as he grabs teammate Earl Schultz, head. Stanford's John Windsor, right, has a two-handed hold on the ball—and a face full of fingers.
